Gandhi's Cow
Coolidge's Speech
Pulitzer's Horse
And Mayer's Radio Tip

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1928, by Star Co.

BRITAIN'S 300,000,000 Hindu subjects followed their prophet Gandhi through many kinds of foolishness. They believed him when he advised hand weaving to compete with British looms, and admired him when he starved himself in a British prison.

They turn against him now, because he has caused a suffering sick cow to be killed and put out of hopeless misery.

Hindus worship the cow as a goddess. Hindu goddesses have taken the cow shape, as Jupiter took the shape of a bull.

Also the cow gives milk, like a mother.

You would not kill your sick mother, no matter how sick.

Therefore, you must not kill a sick cow.

Thousands of miserable animals die slowly, starving, in India, and no one will kill them. When the British order police to put suffering creatures out of their misery, the population longs to rebel, and would, if it had the energy.

No wonder a handful of meat eating, beer and whiskey drinking British can handle and keep down 300,000,000 Hindus.

Those Hindus that turn on Gandhi for destroying a suffering animal, will cut the throats of a thousand goats in their temple yard because the blood pleases some god.

And they hate the British for forbidding "suttee," the practice of burning young widows alive, with the bodies of their old husbands.

Whoever can get excited about "the wrongs of India" gets excited easily.

Mr. James writes from Europe about America and Coolidge in a way that must be applauded by all the debt dodging nations. The New York Times that prints his writing should be paid advertising rates for "full position, next to pure reading matter."

Mr. James says that Europe recognizes this country's right to build any kind of navy, which you'll admit is very sweet of Europe.

But he and Europe evidently think that Coolidge and the country that elected him should be ashamed of themselves.

Thank heaven for Mr. James, and the Times that prints his stuff. It will stimulate here preparation for what Europe would do if it dared.

Fortunately, just now, Europe feels toward this country as those Hindus feel toward Britain.

Or as that able citizen, the late Joseph Pulitzer, felt towards a horse that he rode along the upper Corniche road, back of Beaulieu, on the Mediterranean. The horse persisted in dancing on the edge of a precipice, to which a passing hay wagon had forced it.

"Damn you," said Pulitzer, almost blind, "I wish I dared hit you on the head."

That's just how Europe feels toward us, and especially toward Mr. Coolidge, dancing on the brink of war.

The stock market continues to boil along, while conservatism holds up a warning finger, and those that failed to "get aboard," hold up several warning fingers.

Five million shares sold yesterday. Radio Company jumped up 30 points, for the day

When Mr. Mayer, of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, advised all Hollywood to buy that stock last winter, it was selling under 90. It closed yesterday at 331, up more than $200 a share. Mr Mayer bought only a few thousand shares, because his motto is: "Don't gamble."

Sorrow of the singed bear is rooted in the fact that they never know what will happen next.

Yesterday, for instance, the Du Pont Company gave each stockholder three and a half shares for one, and an extra dividend of $3.75 a share. The stock dividend is no meaningless gesture.

It means that next year stockholders will get in dividends seventeen million dollars more than they get this year.

That sort of thing makes bears sympathize with Dante characters on whom flakes of fire fall eternally.

Mr. Hoover starts on his South American trip and the Mississippi starts on a rampage.

Several lives and several million dollars have been lost already.

"Old Man River" may shorten Mr. Hoover's journey.

It must be a pleasant combination to be a President, with power, and an engineer, knowing how.

'DRUNKEN MURDERERS' CHARGE RESENTED BY VESTRIS INSPECTOR

New York, Nov. 20—Capt. Edward Keane, department of commerce inspector of hulls, shouted a denial today that he had been drunk when he passed the steamer Vestris, which sank a week ago yesterday with a loss of more than 100 lives, as seaworthy.

Capt. Keane was the first witness today at the investigation of the Vestris foundering, conducted by the United States Steamboat Inspection Service at the Customs House, and told of condemning 68 rotten lifebelts on the Vestris and seeing that they were replaced with good ones.

The presiding officer read a letter dated November 14 and signed "Samuel Lawson." The letter was received by the steamboat inspection service in an envelope on the flap of which was printed "United States Lines."

The letter contained charges that the inspection of the Vestris by Capt. Keane and an inspector of boilers consisted of the inspector enjoying a hearty breakfast on the ship and "swilling whiskey and [illegible] in the ship's bar."

"The inspectors left in the afternoon," the letter read, "with a certain weakness in their legs and each with a package under his arm."

The letter concluded with the re-

SIX IN WRECK CLING TO ROCKS ALL NIGHT

Shipwrecked off Rockport by a heavy gale, six Boston members of the crew of the 38-foot fishing vessel Salbavages of Boston, clung desperately all night to jagged rocks, and were rescued by the Coast Guard today.

The boat was returning from the Isle of Shoals, Portsmouth, N. H., and carried a catch of 2500 pounds of fresh fish.

As the craft neared Rockport last night a heavy gale struck her and she sank after striking on submerged rocks.

The six men, all of the North End, jumped for their lives and swam to a ledge half a mile away.

Perched on the rocks they lighted their oilskins in an effort to attract the notice of the Coast Guard station at Rockport. But heavy waves reaching the spot put out the makeshift beacon.

The sextet clung to the high rocks for their lives as wave after wave struck them, breaking their grips time and again.

A patrolman on duty in the Coast Guard tower spied them at dawn and sounded the alarm.

Quickly a Coast Guard crew rowed to the scene and took the exhausted men off the rocks. After being given food and warm clothing they were sent to Boston.

The captain and owner of the craft was Bragio Girdana and the crew were Vincent Messina, Carlos Gianni, Rullo Inaz'a, Guissippe Guarino and Thomas Seci.

TRIPLE PROBE IN STATE PRISON PLOT: OUTBREAK HAD LONG BEEN FEARED

The inside story of the intended wholesale delivery at Charlestown Prison, in which seven "long-term" prisoners, three of them lifers, figured on a sensational break for freedom by battering and shooting down guards with hammers and revolvers, revealed today one of the most amazing and far-reaching schemes in the history of the gray-walled institution.

Some of the facts known to be in possession of the investigators as a result of the probe into the recent killing of Turnkey Pfluger by Charles Trippi are as follows:

1—That guards living in [illegible] dread and fear [illegible] since last July of an [illegible] among the prisoners.

2—That a dismantled revolver, parts of a radio, a hypodermic needle and other evidences of narcotics were found hidden in the prison.

'JACK' SANBORN GIVEN SIX MONTHS' SENTENCE

John A. ("Jack") Sanborn, heir of a Winchester family, was sentenced today to six months in the House of Correction on a non-support charge in Malden court.

The sentence was imposed after the colorful scion of great wealth appealed a court order to pay his wife $25 a week. He also appealed his sentence and was bailed by himself with a guaranteed check for $1000.

Today's climax in the case came after months of delay and the case, that already has had several continuances, would not have been brought up again until next May, the court was told, except that Mrs. Sanborn learned of "Jack's" coming into a sum of money.

She feared, she said, that if the case were delayed until May, all his legacy would be spent.

The wife who brings the non-support charge is Mrs. Eleanor G. Murphy Hunt Sanborn, his second, whom he married first in Florida in 1925 and later, in 1927, remarried in Arlington when it was discovered the Florida wedding was illegal in Massachusetts because occurring too soon after Jack's divorce decree.

His first wife was Eleanore Mont-

TWENTY LIVES LOST IN BLIZZARD AND FLOODS

Chicago, Nov. 20 (INS)—Temperatures ranging from the freezing mark downward today added to the hardships of flood and storm victims throughout the Middle West. Snow had ceased falling in Chicago, but the mercury was down to freezing.

Several middle and far-western states are covered by a heavy blanket of snow, ranging in depth from a few inches to several feet. Most of it fell yesterday and Sunday night.

Automobiles were stranded on snow-banked highways and in some cases the occupants were forced to spend the night in stalled machines. Two deaths from exposure were reported from Wyoming and another from Idaho.

Farther east, five states in the Mississippi Valley were fighting their annual flood problem. The Mississippi itself was far out of its banks and with it many of its tributaries and smaller streams in Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Illinois and Kentucky.

The death toll attributed directly

MISSING COLLEGE BOY MAY BE IN MOUNTAINS

Curtis H. Glover of Melrose Highlands, Dartmouth College sophomore, who resigned from his classes, calling college life stupid and dull, is believed by his chums to be grappling with life in the raw, à la Thoreau, in the wintry wilds of Franconia Notch, N. H.

While admitting his liking for the preachments of Henry David Thoreau, America's most famous lover of nature, the youth's parents today denied emphatically that he was essaying a back-to-nature existence, declaring he was resting and would return to school.

But M. C. Haywood, assistant to the president of Dartmouth, said he had resigned with all formality, indicating that modern methods of education did not suit him, and giving no hint of an intention ever to return.

His classmates point to his letter of explanation written to the college daily in which he wrote: "I have decided to give expression to my wild nature and to try whether it be possible to live humanely."

They told of his summertime hikes through the White Mountains and his constant references to Franconia which seemed to be his favorite vacation haunt.

Glover's father, George C. Glover, a Boston architect, said he expects to see his son within a few days and added that he had told college authorities "in a general way" where his son is.

Mrs. Glover said the youth had

BROKER ELDRIDGE WILL FIGHT HIS WIFE'S SUIT

Joseph I. Eldridge, Boston investment broker, whose society wife is suing for divorce on grounds of cruel and abusive treatment and unfaithfulness, today signified his intention of contesting the suit.

An attorney, William Hirsh of 43 Tremont st., Boston, formally entered an appearance for Eldridge in Middlesex Probate Court at East Cambridge.

Mrs. Helen L. Eldridge named Edna Smith, formerly of Mountfort st., Back Bay, a girl whom Eldridge declared he had never heard of before.

After his wife's suit was filed, he at first insisted on living at their house on Commonwealth ave., Newton, and she called the police to oust him, but he withdrew voluntarily after police refused to interfere. She has a $100,000 attachment on his property.

STATE TROOPERS WITH GUNS AT REVERE POLLS

Fifteen State troopers, in uniforms and with regulation "gats" hanging from their belts, stood guard at the Revere polling places today as one of the bitterest mayoral campaigns in many years came to its climax in the primaries.

The troopers were sent to do duty by Capt. Charles T. Beaupre, head of the uniformed force of the State police.

This action was understood to be a direct result of a request by J. Vincent Murray, one of the Republican candidates, for guards to "save the election from being stolen."

Revere is one among four cities where primaries are being held today. Fully 85 per cent of the registered vote of 12,660 was expected to be cast, and at opening time, 12 noon, there was such a crush at City Hall, one of the voting precincts for Ward 4, that Pleasant st. had to be made a one-way thoroughfare.

The polls in Revere are open until 9 tonight, while in Malden, Everett

GIRL AMNESIA VICTIM HELD AT CITY HOSPITAL

Wandering aimlessly on Blue Hill ave., early today, an attractive 18-year-old girl, said by authorities of the City Hospital to be suffering from amnesia, was found by a police officer as she staggered off a curbing on the verge of complete collapse.

The name of "Ray," which the police have as yet been unable to classify as a boy or girl, was repeated frequently by the pretty victim as she lay on her hospital bed.

Patrolman Thomas Patten of the Morton st. station found the girl at Blue Hill ave. near Evelyn st. She was about to step into the street in the path of a speeding automobile when the police officer grabbed her arm.

Questions asked by the officer failed to draw coherent replies from the girl and she was taken to the station. Later she was sent to the City Hospital.

When the girl was admitted, she asked that a friend named "Ray" with whom she stated she had attended a moving picture show on Blue Hill ave. last night be notified.

Mrs. Nichols Under X-Ray; Condition Much Better

The condition of Mrs. Malcolm E. Nichols, wife of the Mayor, was reported as considerably improved today at the City Hospital.

After passing a comfortable night, Mrs. Nichols was taken to the X-ray room today where a number of plates were made.

Doctors stated that her attack of jaundice had passed, but that they were uncertain whether gall-stones are present.

At present, the physicians said, there is no operation contemplated.

CALLER SAVES LYNN WOMAN

Mrs. Leah Davis, 25, mother of one child, was found unconscious today on the kitchen floor of her James st., Lynn, apartment, with gas flowing from a small gas stove. A man who was making a business call smelled gas and forced the door. By use of a pulmotor the woman was revived.

prisoners to beat the guards into submission.

6—That Hoppe was supposed to have two revolvers on his person on the scheduled day.

7—That the date and time were set as a week ago today between noon and 1 o'clock when guard duty was at a minimum.

8—That life was to have been no object in effecting escape.

As a result of these startling disclosures, a triple probe is under way, while rumblings threaten a shake-up of guards or at least the installation of more men to guard the inmates.

NEED MORE GUARDS

Charges have been made that the prison is undermanned with guards and that when there were only 450 prisoners at the institution they had more guards than at present when 59 are doing 24-hour duty over 975 prisoners.

Admissions that the seven men, whose plot was nipped in the bud by the premature attempt of Trippi to escape by shooting a turnkey to his death, are now widely separated and under careful surveillance, were made today by prison officials.

They further admitted that the suspicious actions of these men led to their confinement under greater restrictions, as the fear held by guards of impending disaster came to a climax with the slaying in cold blood of their comrade.

Commissioner of Correction Sanford Bates admitted that parts of a revolver and a radio and a $2 bill were found hidden in the prison.

Deputy Warden Hogsett, in charge during the illness of Warden Hendry, revealed that the men had been separated because of the disclosures of the plot.

PRISONERS TELL STORIES

But outstanding above their own admissions are the stories told to investigators by two prisoners implicated.

Their confessions were made during the interrogation of prisoners following the murder of Guard Pfluger. They agreed to talk freely, but refused to reveal any information in the presence of a police stenographer.

Their story revealed the plan of seven long-timers to overpower the guards on duty on the walls in the yards on Tuesday noon of last week.

At this time the arrival of an American Express truck was expected to make the rounds of Shops 2 and 4 to collect merchandise to be delivered to the outside.

Further than that they refused to talk, but it is known that investigators here have received information as to just how it had all been planned under the guidance of Hoppe.

It had been figured out by the prisoners that the minimum guard detail would be on duty at this time. It would only be necessary to dispose of five guards and the driver of the truck.

PLANS TO ESCAPE

When this truck arrived at Shop 4 the seven prisoners, stationed at various posts weer to go into action. The guard was to be struck down with a hammer obtained in one of the shops.

The man who did this job was prepared then to drive the truck to ten lowest part of the prison wall —15 feet in height. He was then to pile up a packing case on top of the truck to make the scaling of the wall easier.

Then the work of effecting the wholesale escape would have been merely a matter of hammering the guards and shooting them down by Hoppe with the gun he was supposed to have possessed.

It has been learned that in addition to the discovery of the gun and radio parts in the south wing, other evidences that the men had contact with the outside world has been found.

Officers who first learned of this last July have been constantly searching cells in the south wing and have found drugs to support their contention that a sinister scheme was underfoot.

Guards have maintained a strict watch over prisoners who made friends with Hoppe since his arrival under life sentence.

They realized that with his record of jail-breaks he would undoubtedly devise means of escape from Charlestown.

It was also learned that during the investigation information was submitted to the authorities that a stepladder had been found out of place and was to have been used in scaling the wall on another occasion.

Although no evidence of firearms was found either on Hoppe or in his cell, the two prisoners who "talked" declared that Hoppe was to have had two automatics on the day of the intended break.

They further revealed that the prisoners had no fear of the wall guards as they had been led to believe that their rifles were of an antiquated nature and that some times the guards even forgot to load them.

Commisioner Bates, in discussing the situation, has characteried the stories of a break by air of machine gun and bombs as a gross exaggeration, but admits that he became suspicious of the action of four of the men recently, and had them quartered in separate cells under closer watch.

Another angle that was picked up by investigators was the manner in which narcotics could have been brought into the prison. Questioning of several suspected receiwers of the drugs is reported as having brought no results.

In a statement issued this morning, Commissioner Bates declared that at the present time the usual discipline prevails at the prison, and since the tragedy of a week ago in the slaying of the guard, there has been no disorder of any kind.

mark that this was "the kind of murderers" that comprise the personnel of the steamboat inspection service.

SHOUTS DENIAL

Capt. Keane was asked how much, if any, of this letter was true.

"The whole thing is the most outrageous lie I ever heard," he shouted. "I am the fourth generation of my family which has never touched a drop of any stimulant."

Capt. Keane was then asked in detail about each specific charge in the letter. He said that neither he nor the other inspector had breakfast on the Vestris, that neither of them had anything or were offered anything to drink on board and that they did not carry away with them any packages.

He was then asked if he and his associate had carried packages which looked as if they might contain bottles of liquor they would not have been stopped by customs men on the pier.

"There were customs men and prohibition men in plain clothes on the pier," he said. "You don't suppose that we would take any chance of being picked up for bootleggers?"

Capt. Keane told in detail of his inspection of the Vestris, an annual inspection completed several days before the steamer left on its ill-fated voyage in what some of the survivors have called an unseaworthy condition.

O. K.'S COAL PORTS

He said he found everything that was his responsibility to inspect in good condition and he mentioned particularly the coal ports and the half doors in the side of the ship through which the crew enters and leaves while the ship is at its pier.

Officers of the Vestris have testified at the Federal hearing conducted by United States Dist. Atty. Tuttle that water poured into the ship through both the coal ports and the half doors.

These officers, First Mate Johnson and Chief Engineer Adams, said that efforts were made to tighten these openings in the hull, but it was found impossible to stem the flow of water.

Keane testified that the 68 of 691 lifebelts found rotten were thrown out before the ship left on her last voyage.

He said all the lifeboats were tested by him and found in good condition, that there were no holes in any of them as alleged by some survivors of the disaster, and that each was provided with sufficient food and fresh water to meet requirements under American laws.

He said he had examined side ladders, bulkheads, fire extinguishers and the two hand pumps, but found nothing defective.

The hearing at which Keane testified is conducted by D. N. Hoover, supervising inspector of the United States Steamship Service.

FORMERLY CTPTAIN

Witness, who is 62 years old, said he had been inspector of hulls for 17 years, had had long experience in shipping and was seven years captain of a British ship before entering the United States service. He was questioned by Chief Hoover and rose from his seat several times to show how he had gone over life belts and boats, looking for flaws.

Q.—Were you compelled to do the job hastily? A.—No, I had four days. That was ample time.

Keane said he spent the first day going over the life preservers.

Then he examined 12 lifeboats hanging from davits and two extra boats under the davits.

"There were two pounds of bread and a quart of water in each," he said. "I examined the flares and found all in good condition."

He had put 65 persons in each of the 12 boats on the davits to test their capacity, he said, then raised and lowered them to test the mechanism. He did not, however, raise the extra boats. "They, too, were in good condition," he said.

NO HOLES IN BOATS

Q.—Was there a hole in any life boat? It had been testified at another hearing that one had a hole in it. A.—No, sir, there was not a hole in any of the boats.

Q.—How about the plugs? A.—The plugs were in good condition. There were plugs in all the boats.

Chief Hoover alluded to printed reports that there had been trouble in getting the boats over ship's side.

Keane answered: "The falls—that is the ropes running through the davit pulleys—were in the best of condition.

"The bottom of the ship was in fine condition. We hammered the hull with heavy chisels but found no weak spots. The rudder pins were likewise found in good shape."

Keane said the Vestris had 7 coal ports on each side. He examined eight—four on each side—but could not get at the other six because they had coal jammed against them.

He pointed out that coal ports on American ships open from the inside while those on British ships open from the outside.

He said the gaskets on the Vestris were the "best kind," being made of lead and cotton.

Q.—What did you think of the coal ports? A.—They looked real good to me. They were not dented, had not been knocked out of shape in any way.

A peculiar mystery with a Boston twist has developed as an off-shoot of the Vestris disaster and it bids fair to remain unsolved.

When the bodies of some of the victims were recovered, one remained for a day or two unidentified. Then a man appeared who said he was George Parker of the Hotel Commodore and he named the unidentified victim as Eleanor Parker of Boston, or, more specifically he said, of Cedar st., Haverhill.

This gave the authorities something of a problem for there was no Eleanor Parker listed among the Vestris' passengers or crew.

How N. Y. Work Girls Have to 'Pinch' to Exist

New York, Nov. 20 (INS)—There was material for a pathetic O. Henry story in testimony given today to the Association to Promote Proper Housing Conditions for Working Girls.

It related to the high cost of boy friends, omitted luncheons, second grade silk stockings and bleak bedroom quarters.

Jennie Marock, a file clerk, and Phyllis Krieger, a student, told of difficulty in making both ends meet on $15 a week.

A decent room costs $8 a week, leaving only $7 for food, clothing, cosmetics and incidentals. The girls said they could not dress in such a manner as to catch the masculine eye and that there was an appalling lack of parlor space for entertaining beaux in rooming houses.

WAR ON SUNDAY LAUNDRY AUTOS

Laundry truck drivers in Dorchester are going to get a Sunday night off whether they want it or not, hereafter, and those that fail to avail themselves of this holiday, will be forced to take another day off during the week to attend a court hearing in which they will be principal figures.

All this is a result of a crusade opened by Capt. John E. Driscoll, of the Morton st. station against laundry drivers whose sputtering motors on the Sabbath evening disturb the slumber of the early retirers.

So many complaints have been received lately, that Capt. Driscoll decided that a few hours more sleep is worth more than a clean collar or shirt, and with this in mind, has also decided that housewives can wait until Monday morning to have their clothes picked up.

Already five summonses have been served on drivers, charging them with performing unnecessary labor on the Lord's day.

PLAN TO WRECK CAR FOILED BY MOTORMAN

Prompt action on the part of an Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway operator prevented the attempted wrecking of his heavily loaded trolley car at Houghs Neck, it was learned today, as officials of that company sought police aid in checking the activities of a gang of hoodlums.

A large cement post, placed directly across the rails at a point that would have sent the car hurtling over a 100-foot embankment into a sand and gravel pit, was discovered by Operator John Lindholm as the car approached the obstruction.

He jammed on the brakes, and the car came to a halt a few feet away from the post. Passengers were unaware of their peril until Lindholm stepped out and removed the obstacle.

That is only one incident of a series of dangerous pranks, according to the company's letter of complaint to the police. Trolleys are being pulled off the wires, and windows are being broken, it is charged.

As a result, Quincy police will detail a squad to Hough's Neck tonight in an effort to put a halt to the activities. Meantime a search is being made for the boys who nearly wrecked the car.

PROTEST HUB RADIO CHANGE

Atty.-Gen. Joseph E. Warner will appear before the Federal Radio Commission Friday forenoon in Washington to protest against the lowering of the wavelength of WNAC and the shutting down of Station WGY after 9 o'clock at night.

The Attorney-General stated today that he had received numerous complaints on both stations. People in the western part of the state, he said, are affected by the early closing of WGY, while in Eastern Massachusetts many householders are unable to get WNAC on their sets.

"If the people of the state have rights in the air, and I believe they have, I propose to see that their interests do not go by default," said Warner.

DEALERS JOIN IN GOODWIN'S RATE FIGHT

By BERT FORD

Automobile dealers, particularly those who handle used cars, today joined the ever-increasing army of protestants against the new automobile rate schedule, according to Frank A. Goodwin, former registrar of motor vehicles.

Pointing out that the proposed rates would drive from the roads many people unable to afford any but cheap, second-hand cars, Goodwin said representatives of the dealers had talked with him in connection with arranging a conference on the problem.

"Unfairness to the second-hand car owners, which do not appear on the surface ,but are major complaints, is among the many hardships which would be worked by the new compulsory insurance automobile rates," former Registrar Goodwin sair.

"Representatives of dealers have already talked with me to arrange for a conference. It can be readily seen how the man who wants to buy a second-hand automobile to take his family out, can't afford to pay almost as much for compulsory insurance as he pays for the car.

"Certain families cannot afford anything better than the cheapest kind of a second-hand car and the new rates would drive them off the road. Wage earners in Metropolitan Boston are the worst sufferers.

"AsA to sales resistance, the new rates will have a tendency to impair car sales, both new and second-hand, but particularly second hand. The dealer who takes second-hand cars in trade for new cars will also feel the effects.

"The Monk schedules would have saddled $3,200,000 additional on the car owners of the State by compulsory insurance. On the compromise schedules promulgated by Acting Insurance Commissioner Linnell, the figure is reduced by $1,400,000, leaving $1,800,000 additional for the car owners of the State to pay in compulsory insurance above the figures of last year.

"The big mistake was in the attempt to split the State into zones. It was a fatal blunder on the part of former Commissioner Monk. The matter should have been appraised on a unit basis. There are only two units available——the State or the individual.

Explosion Leads to Discovery of Still In East Boston

Someone, unknown to the police, has been running a 100-gallon still in the garage in the rear of an Orleans st., East Boston, home.

Today the still exploded with a terrific blast that wrecked two windows and threatened to transplant the walls into an adjoining yard. Fire broke out. Police and firemen extinguished the blaze after it had caused $400 damage.

HER WILL AMAZES ACTOR

Bessie Chatterton Poole, former Brockton dancer who died in New York, Oct. 8, willed W. C. Fields, noted comedian, a diamond solitaire. Her death also revealed she left a 12-year-old son named after Fields. The comedian said the bequest "amazed" him. He said he scarcely knew her.

BESSIE POOLE'S GIFT SURPRISE TO FIELDS

"The statement of W. C. Fields, stage and screen comedian, that he scarcely knew Bessie Chatterton Poole, former Brockton dancer, who willed him a diamond ring, is ridiculous," said Atty. Thomas F. Reddy of State st., counsel for the parents of the dead girl, today.

The tragic death of the dancer revealed that she had an 11-year-old son named after Fields. The boy is in Belleville, N. J. His birth is believed to have been unknown to Miss Pooles' parents until a short time ago.

In discussing the case, Attorney Reddy, who caused the dancer's will to be filed in New York City through his agent there, said:

"In time the whole story may be told, but as a confidential relationship of counsel and client now exists between Bessie's parents and me, I cannot divulge what I know. I know the whole story."

QUOTES HER WILL

According to Reddy, a crude will, in which Fields was bequeathed a diamond ring, was executed in New York about a year ago before Miss Poole went to a hospital to undergo an appedicitis operation.

The will follows:

"I, Bessie Poole, in my sound mind before going to the hospital for an operation, ask that my wishes written below please be carried out.

"To Mrs. M. J. Kellher, 119 Newbury st., Brockton, Mass., please give my Flint car.

"To Mr. W. C. Fields, my ring with the diamond in the center with small stones set all around it.

"All the rest of my belongings to my mother, Mrs. Bessie Woods, who I wish would please give my father some token of mine.

(Signed) Bessie Poole."

"Witnesses—Carolyn V. Erwin, Carol B. Young."

Atty. Reddy considers the will a valid one, despite its crudeness, as it was signed by two witnesses. Both witnesses are "show" people.

PLAYED TOGETHER HERE

The former Brockton dancer's parents were divorced. Her mother remarried and is now a widow. She lives at Onset, and is said to be on the verge of a nervous breakdown because of revelations following her daughter's death.

The dancer's father, to whom she referred in the will, is Louis S. Poole of Boston.

It was reported that Miss Poole married shortly after she went to New York at the age of 16.

The comedian and Miss Poole played in Zeigfeld's Follies together and later in a vaudeville sketch at a Boston theater.

LINK JEWELERS IN 35 MILLION DIAMOND PLOT

New York, Nov. 20 (AP)—The trail of smuggled diamonds, over which it is estimated $35,000,000 in gems passes yearly, was expected by Federal agents today to lead to the doors of several jewelers.

Held for the Federal Grand Jury under $5000 bail is Morris Landau, a jeweler with a store in John st., who the agents contend was the destined receiver for the $50,000 worth of diamonds found in the bunk of William Ballyn, the "singing steward" of the Cunard Line's flagship Berengaria.

Ballyn, said the agents, has admitted bringing into the country in the last two years about $1,000,000 in unset diamonds and they believe that part of this and other shipments of smuggled gems were disposed of to other prominent jewelers. They intimated other arrests would be made.

Ballyn also was held under $5000 for grand jury action, while Patrolman John T. McIntyre, alleged go-between, was held under $3500 bail, and Landau's 20-year-old daughter, Marion, who served as his bookkeeper, was held in $1500.

Savannah, Ga., Nov. 20 (AP)—For days and days gangs of men worked on greens at the City Golf Club, plowing, planting the ground. Savannah golfers would have fine putting greens.

Two days ago things began to come up and now seven greens must be made over because golf club officials decided golfers could not putt on the crop of mustard greens and carrots.

The packages from which the seed came was labeled grass seed.

or indirectly to the flood stood at 17 Property loss was estimated at anywhere from $2,000,000 to $10,000,000 Thousands of acres of rich farm lands in Kansas and Missouri are under water.

The Ohio and Cumberland rivers are reported rising to dangerous stages. In Kentucky, the Cumberland is already out of its banks, having flooded Middlesboro and several smaller villages.

Railroad traffic is badly crippled, in some places completely paralyzed, throughout the affected areas.

Red Cross and relief organizations have prepared to go to work in the inundated districts. Town and municipal authorities have organized to protect refugees fleeing from their homes.

Three deaths were reported in Kentucky, for the Cumberland River was reported to have burst her banks and was roaring down to the Ohio with the greatest volume of water seen in years. Three men on a bridge were caught in the grasp of the waters and were carried away to their deaths. In Harlan 700 persons were forced to flee from their homes when the flood caught them and swept through their town, tearing down houses and barns.

Gale Unroofs Many Pennsylvania Houses

Harrisburg, Pa., Nov. 20 (AP)—A severe wind and rain storm swept through six counties of Northern Central Pennsylvania leaving scores of unroofed houses and barns, hundreds of uprooted trees and poles and innumerable broken windows.

In Lock Haven trees and poles were felled, telephone lines were put out of commission, and a large tobacco barn was blown over. At Jersey shore an airplane was upset. Many persons had narrow escapes from falling trees.

Houses and garages were unroofed in Montour and Columbia counties.

A garage and motor car were turned over, the car remaining inverted within the walls of the building.

'JACK' SANBORN IS SENTENCED

gomery Sanborn, niece of W. Robert Montgomery, the New York banker.

In court today, before Judge Alfred G. Davis, Mrs. Sanborn testified she has $3000 of her own money, but requires $25 a week to live on.

She told the court Sanborn can well afford to pay, and on three occasions she saw him in night clubs.

JUDGE QUERIES HER.

Judge Ravis interrupted to ask: "Well, what were you doing in the night clubs?"

"I was taken there by friends because I wanted to see if he was there and what he was doing," she replied.

A Boston bank official testified that recently there were $400,000 left in a will to be divided among eight persons. Sanborn's share, the official said, was about $50,000, and of this he has already received approximately $35,000.

From this legacy and an additional income of $1000, Sanborn has an income of $3500 outside that which he earns, the court estimated in arriving at the $25-a-week order.

HIS CHECK IS GOOD

When Sanborn had appealed first the order and then the jail sentence and had been ordered to furnish $1000 bail bonds, he wrote a check for that amount. On assurance from the bank official that there were ample funds to cover the check, Judge Davis accepted it.

Sanborn's first marriage, in 1919, ended in the honeymoon stage. He had started for Bermuda with his bride, but vanished at Worcester. Mrs. Sanborn No. 1 secured a divorce shortly after.

His present wife was Eleanor G. Murphy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd P. Murphy of Parallel st., Arlington.

Sanborn is now living in Winchester, while his wife resides in Malden.

In a short address, Police Commissioner Wilson congratulated the men on their excellent showing in the parade and thanked them for their loyalty and the work they were doing under their new commander. He then handed the trophy over to Capt. John M. Anderson, who, on behalf of the men thanked the commissinoer and the veterans.

READING IS IN SKILTON CASE AS COUNSEL

Former Attorney-General Arthur K. Reading, who faces disbarment proceedings by the Massachusetts Bar Association, appeared in Middlesex Superior Criminal Court today as counsel for Raymond M. Skilton, former Boston hockey player.

Skilton, well known to hockey fans, went on trial before Judge Charles J. Donahue and a jury on a charge of the larceny of $10,000 from the Framingham National Bank on October 4.

It was expected that District Attorney Robert T. Bushnell, who was Reading's first assistant when the latter was district attorney before being elected attorney-general, would prosecute the case, but he failed to appear.

Instead, Asst. Dist. Atty. Richard S. McCabe handled the prosecution and told the jury that Skilton, as assignee for the Nobscot Shoe Co., of Framingham, had obtained a loan of $10,000 by making false statements as to assets which he said were $205,000.

The first witness was Fred L. Cakes, president of the Framingham National Bank, who testified that Skilton went to him last July and asked for a loan.

The witness said he told Skilton he must have good security or good endorsement. Later, he testified, Skilton returned and presented an application for the loan with a credit statement of assets amountin gto $205,000, as assignee of the shoe company.

The loan was madle, the witness said, and deposited in the bank. Later it was withdrawn and no payment made.

SEEK MILLIONS ROTHSTEIN HID IN EUROPE

New York, Nov. 20 (INS)—Arnold Rothstein, slain gambler, concealed the bulk of his hoarded fortune in a safe deposit vault in one of the largest cities in Europe, it was reported here today.

The fortune will total easily $3,000,000 over and above the enormous obligations the great gambler piled up when his plunging in a dozen ventures teeped him in debt

Simultaneously, federal agents turned up information to indicate that Rothstein may have gained some of his millions by connection with the $5,000,000 international diamond smuggling ring just revealed through the arrrest of a steward on the liner Berengaria.

Already the federal men had held a strong suspicion that the slain gambler had "cleaned up" on the illicit importation off narcotics and that he was the "invisible emperor" of a powerful organization that for years has been flooding the western world with dope.

While the probe into Rothstein's life secrets progressed, the police made a desperate 11th-hour effort to find his slayer, for Mayor Walker's time limit for the police to make good in the case expired today.

Detectives were on their way here from Chicago with Mrs. Ruth Keyes, a beautiful blonde clothing model, who, they believed, will prove a valuable witness.

On the day Rothstein was shot, she was with the men who occupied Room 349 at the Park Central Hotel, the room where the gambler was called for a "showdown" on his debts, she has admitted, police said.

If police can secure from her the secret of the identities of her companions, they believe they will have the solution to the Rothstein mystery.

PADLOCK IS PUT ON 'SILVER SLIPPER'

New York, Nov. 20 (INS)—The door of the Silver Slipper night club, which was formerly adorned by a custodian attired like a German field marshal, today wore a funereal padlock.

The Silver Slipper Club was one of eight places of night entertainment in the white light district that received a padlock sentence from Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard for Broadway's favorite crime—violating the prohibition laws.

The Silver Slipper received the most attention because of the allegation of investigators that the finale of the early morning "show" was a chorus of comely young women who danced among the tables wearing little more than a short haircut and a three-bead necklace.

It was no wonder the place was jammed when prohibition enforcement agents raided the place, the agents themselves said.

BOSTON GIRL IS LINGUIST AND SONG STAR, SAYS BETTY ALDEN

Talented Katharine Cunningham Gray to Entertain Select Few at Mother's Home a Week From Tonight

A GIFT FOR LEARNING LANGUAGES IS SOMETHING TO BE GREATLY ENVIED. AND WHEN a budding artist possesses it and thus is enabled to warble in German, Russian, French, Italian and Spanish there's double, triple, quadruple reason for envy. Miss Katharine Cunningham Gray has this marvelous facility with foreign idioms. She also is blessed with a voice, a personality, vivid good looks and doting relatives who like nothing better than to do pleasant things for her, such as opening their drawingrooms and having a few people in to hear her sing.

TODAY WEEK MRS. FRANCIS GRAY IS OPENING HER COMMONWEALTH AVE. PLACE AND A few people will come to hear Miss Gray do a choice program of songs. Mrs. Gray did this same honor to her young kinswoman before the latter sailed away to Italy several moons ago for an intensive period of voice culture under Roman maestri, and, incidentally, to be much feted by social personages in the City of the Caesars. Now that Miss Gray is back in her home bailiwick there is a most alluring future beckoning her along the path to fame and fortune. The way looks rosy.

SYNCOPATION IN GILDED BALLROOM DAZZINGLY FLOWER-DECKED, TO A FIFTY-PIECE ORCHESTRA, is the debutante's delight. And Society's just out darlings double star the evening in memory's notebook if generous minded hosts add to the fifty another half hundred traps, brasses and wood winds to provide continuous rhythmic cadences. The William H. Browns and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Moors were generous hosts, lavish hosts, for Miss Adelaide Brown and her contemporaries. Not only did they provide the lovely ballroom and the two orchestras, but they also gave an enormous dinner before the dance, and so raised appreciation to the nth degree.

THE HOTEL SOMERSET'S French ballroom is so lusciously done in gilt, crystal and gold as to make added adornment unnecessary. So it was a finely discriminating touch to emphasize the rose tone already there by quantities of pompom chrysanthemums in that rich soft pinkish-rose that verges onto orchid and softens into palest pink. The shaggy pom poms, enormous clusters in baskets were held to the balconies high over the dancers' heads by wide pink streamers. They made pleasing splotches of color to contrast with cedars and trailing smilax.

THE DEBUTANTE OF THE evening carried out the orchid-rose motif. So did Mrs. Moors, and to a paler degree, so did Mrs. Brown. Miss Adelaide Brown wore something lovely in debutante frocks in soft orchid. Mrs. Moors was the matron with beautifully coiffed gray tresses wearing velvet, tulle and sequins, and Mrs. Brown was in a soft moire with interesting decorative design. The Browns, of summers, occupy a Cohasset headland estate they name "Homing Point." And, naturally, other Bostonians who spend their summers in pretty Cohasset were guests of the Browns and the Moors.

THREE BUDS OF THE SEASON

Miss Brown was the debutante for whom last evening's dinner and ball were given at Hotel Somerset; Miss Nichols' parents entertain for her Wednesday in Cambridge; Miss Mary Vance figures on late season program.

MRS. WILLIAM COX DIPPED INTO HER TROUSSEAU'S RICH supply for a smart frock of figured tulle that fluttered about its wearer's heels in points. Miss Virginia Ayres was in midnight velvet, slim and straight and, of course, uneven at the hemline. Miss Polly Beale wore an interesting frock of black velvet falling in elongated petal points that started down to touch her cerise velvet slippers but stopped half way there. Miss Mary Vance was in a pompadour gown. Miss Sally Sprague wore yellow. Miss Carolyn Read was in gray crepe, to which a black velvet bow did a coquettish trick.

THIS EVENING THERE MAY BE SEEN AGAIN THE FLUTTER of debutante wings against the social spotlight. The dining and the dancing is in honor of Miss Clarissa Mayo. Her uncle, William H. Mayo, sees to the prandial preliminary, at the Algonquin Club, and her mother, Mrs. George Mayo, is dance hostess at the Hotel Somerset. Which is all in proper procedure for the social entry, the formal bow having been made at a recent tea and the dance coming as a bit of extra frill and thrill for an attractive bud.

DROP INTO 214 NEWBURY ST. NEXT TUESDAY AND VIEW THE array of Thanksgiving dainties the Public Interests League puts on sale. They are the sort to flatten the purse and make the consumer wax plump, but not to be disregarded for all that. There will be some of the frills the discriminating dinner hostess loves to trim a proper meal with—canned fruits, honey, jellies, candies, candied grapefruit peel and other succulent enticements.

MATRONS ASSISTING AT THE SALE ARE MESDAMES JOHN BALCH, Thomas W. Proctor, Harry Hill Thorndike, Charles Willis, Arthur Williams, Herman Vickery, James J. Lee, Paul Killiam, James C. STEWART CASE MAY REACH JURY TODAY

Washington, Nov. 20 (AP)—The perjury trial of Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil of Indiana, moved into its final phases today with counsel for the Government and the defense summing up their cases before the jury in District of Columbia Supreme Court.

Under the arrangement fixed by Justice Jennings Bailey giving two hours to each side, it was problematical at the outset whether the case would get to the jury today.

Stewart is charged in three counts with giving false information to the committee which was seeking to determine the disposition of the Continental bonds, a portion of which had been traced from Harry F. Sinclair, oil magnate, to Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior.

Frank J. Hogan attacked the Government's contention that a quorum was present when Stewart appeared before the committee. He asserted that the Government's claim had not been established by testimony and had, in fact, been disproved.

THREE SLAIN BY 'HATCHET MAN'

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 20 (AP)—A "hatchet man," blamed for three particularly brutal slayings within a 24-hour period had started police today on one of the most intensive killer hunts in years.

Two women and an aged man were the victims, all bearing the marks of the handax. Similarity of the crimes, the uniform brutality manifest, convinced officers that the man they sought was mad; "a fiend, a crazy man," was the way Police Inspector Danbaum classified him.

The victims were Mrs. Walter Resso, a 21-year old mother of three children; her sister, Greta Brown, 18, and J. W. Blackman, 75-year-old expressman.

Blackman was slain as he slept. His son, Cecil, found the body, hammered and chopped about the head, covered with a comforter. A hatchet, stained with blood, and a shoe were found in a woodpile behind the Blackman home.

AFGHAN KING'S REFORMS MAKE TROUBLE FOR HIM

London, Nov. 20 (AP)—Official reports received at the India office today said tribal uneasiness near the northwest frontier had been accentuated recently owing to increased disturbances on the Afghan side of the boundary. These disturbances are reported to be due to reforms introduced by King Amanullah of Afghanistan after his return from Europe.

The reports did not substantiate rumors of a serious upheaval among the wild tribes of the Indian northwest.

THREE HELD AS SAFE ROBBERS IN 3 STATES

Charges were formally placed today against three men whom the police arrested in a drive to break up a big gang of safe-crackers who are believed to have taken $1,000,000 in a long series of robberies in Maine, Rhode Island and Massachusetts.

The names of these three were disclosed for the first time when charges of breaking and entering in the night time and larceny were placed against them.

They are Edward A. Cosaccio and Joseph Scopa of Everett and Anthony Champa of Endicott st., Baston.

The only break with which they are charged is that which occurred in the H. P. Hood & Sons creamery in Salem st., North End, several weeks ago, when a safe containing $584 was stolen, blown open at some distant point, the contents taken and the safe cast away.

Although the authorities believe a big gang has been disorganized and broken up by the arrest of these men, which came about through clever police work by Thomas A. Keating of Capt. William W. Livingston's "flying squadron," they fear the real ringleaders have escaped.

Information gleaned by Keating, chiefly from a sweetheart of one of the younger members of the supposed gang, and partly from this youth himself, took police to a restaurant near Scollay sq. which is said to be a hangout for yeggs, and from there to the homes of various suspects.

The arrests of Casaccio, Scopa and Champa quickly followed, but one man who was wanted very much and who had an automobile parked in front of his house, made his escape. He went in such a hurry, however, that he did not take his car, fleeing by the back way. His car is still parked where it was and police are watching.

For 24 hours those arrested were held as suspicious persons and their names, therefore, could not be disclosed. Following the placing of the charges against them today they were taken to municipal court for arraignment.

ONTARIO WARNS PAPER PLANTS

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 20 (AP)—Premier G. Howard Ferguson of Ontario has warned officials of pulp and paper companies operating in the province that unless reforms in management are made, the government "will be compelled to give serious and immediate consideration to what action it should take."

Much American capital is invested in the companies.

The companies have been engaging in ruinous competition the premier charges in a letter calling attention to the fact that the companies all hold contracts with the province.

Explaining the financing of the companies, the premier said that between $250,000,000 and $300,000,000 had been invested, the securities being held throughout the United States, Canada and Great Britain. He described the industry as the second largest in Canada.

8 RAIL VICTIMS IN HOSPITALS

Lowell, Nov. 20 (AP)—Eight persons remained in hospitals today with injuries they received in a collision of two Boston & Maine passenger trains in which 22 were hurt and one fatally injured.

The names of two railroad employes, Henry Strawbridge of Manchester, N. H., and Samuel Lucas of Lowell, were on the danger list. The others less seriously injured were Ralph Fletcher, Somerville; William Handley, Charles Goodfield, Lowell; Charles Welch, Manchester; Freeman Phillips, Lynn; William Daley, Arlington.

Investigation into the wreck was conducted by the Boston & Maine, the Department of Public Utilities and the Interstate Commerce Commission. The results of their investigations will be made known at a hearing tomorrow in Boston, at which the responsibility for the wreck is expected to be determined.

15 OF CREW KILLED BY CHINESE PIRATES

Shanghai, China, Nov. 20 (AP)—The Chinese junk Chin Chang Tai reported today she had been attacked by pirates in the estuary of the Yangste river and 15 members of her crew murdered.

The vessel, bound for Shanghai from Darien, said 60 pirates overpowered the crew, after they had put up desperate resistance. The bodies of the 15 murdered were thrown overboard. The vessel was released after payment of a ransom of $1600 Mexican.

Pabst was flying a Whirlwind-motored Travel Air and had two passengers. The ship was not damaged.

'OLD SLEUTH' SAILS WITH HOOVER

STAR CHEFS IN CHARGE OF CHOW

Aboard U. S. S. Maryland, at Sea, Nov. 20—President-elect Herbert Hoover plans to announce a tentative itinerary of his Latin America goodwill tour today. He spent most of last evening mapping out the tour.

He is expected to present a comprehensive program for a better understanding between the two continents as the goodwill mission proceeds.

A section of the quarterdeck has been reserved for the President-elect, but he spent little time there during his first day on ship. His entire attention is now focused on the details of the tour through the southern republics.

Hoover has about 50 detective stories aboard for diversion when his itinerary is mapped out. "Old Sleuth" will help him pass the time.

The weather was beautiful on the first day out from Los Angeles harbor. The escort of six destroyers left the Maryland off San Diego late yesterday and returned to their base.

ENJOYED MOVIES

The Hoover party last night enjoyed a movie show and a concert by the ship's band.

In the party are Mrs. Hoover, their son Allan, representatives of the State Department, aides and newspapermen.

Mr. Hoover is expected to visit at least ten republics before he again touches upon United States soil in mid-January. The first Central American port of call is either Guatemala City or Corinto, Nicaragua. It will be a six-day journey to reach these cities.

Other countries to be visited are Panama, Peru, Chile, Bolivia, the Argentine, Brazil, Mexico and Cuba. Still other countries may be added to the itinerary at the discretion of Mr. Hoover. Every country has sent him an invitation.

Henry P. Fletcher, ambassador to Italy, who will act as aide to Mr. Hoover during the goodwill journey, joined the future President here upon the latter's arrival from Palo Alto on a special train yesterday.

DR. BOONE ORDERED

Lieut.-Comdr. Joel T. Boone, assistant White House physician, has been ordered to board the Maryland at Panama and take up his duties as physician to the President-elect.

Commander Boone was physician to President and Mrs. Harding and assistant physician to President and Mrs. Coolidge.

During the voyage the Maryland will be under the command of Capt. Victor A. Kimberly.

Special cooks from the battle fleet have been assigned to the Hoover party and meals will be served from a special pantry. Arthur Prettyman, negro,. will. serve. as .a .personal waiter to the Hoovers. Eleven other of the servants in the retinue are Filpinos.

LIKE OCEAN LINER

As far as appearances go, as pertaining to the deck, the Maryland will resemble an ocean liner rather than a battleship. Deck games were taken aboard and deck chairs, rugs and other comforts have been provided for the party.

Motion pictures will be shown on the deck every night that weather will permit. Radio sets have also been installed in the Hoover suite.

News bulletins will be sent from Washington to the Maryland twice a day. Four of the Navy's best radio operators have been assigned to the battleship to take care of this work.

INTEREST IN PLANES

Mr. Hoover spent some time today on the promenade and quarter decks chatting with members of his party. He showed great interest in the mighty ship and especially in two seaplanes carried aboard the vessel.

The President-elect's quarters, which are the admiral's suite, contain a comprehensive collection of books on South and Central America.

In anticipation of the trip Capt. Victor A. Kimberly also stocked Mrs. Hoover's rooms with a library dealing with the Americas and also general topics. About nine of Mr. Hoover's friends apparently had the same idea, for they sent to the Maryland another large collection of books. The library will be for the use of the party as well as the President-elect.

After funeral services here today Dr. Harding's body will be sent to Marion, O., to be laid to rest in the family plot.

This is the first picture of the next First Lady to show her laughing, and was taken at her Palo Alto home especially for the Hearst papers Her friends says she will be a delightful hostess of the White House. Her beaming good nature may prove of great value in making friendships for herself and Mr. Hoover on the good will tour of South America, on which they have just started.

3 BOYS HELD IN LYNN FIRE AT DENOVA CLUB

Sergt. James Fee and Patrolman Michael Keenan of the Lynn police today arrested three boys, who, they claim, confessed to burning the Denova Club, the property of Lynn business men, on the night of October 22.

The boys, Willard Lombard, 17, of Longwood rd.; Kenneth Douglas, 15, of Lynnfield st., and John Molloy, 15, of Range rd., all Lynn, were arraigned in Lynn court today, charged with maliciously burning a building. They were held in $1000 for a hearing in juvenile court tomorrow.

In the same court Joseph Herto, 15, of Washington st., was arraigned as the "night hawk" who has been breaking into buildings and leaving taunting notes for the police. With him was arraigned Harold H. Clark, 15, of Essex st., both being charged with breaking and entering and larceny in the night time. They were also held for juvenile court.

DAUGHTER OF BISHOP BECOMES A CATHOLIC

London, Nov. 20 (AP)—The Catholic Times announced today that Dorothy Nickson, eldest daughter of Rt. Rev. George Nickson, Anglican Bishop of Bristol, had been received into the Roman Catholic Church.

The publication said the reception ceremony was performed privately in a Devonshire chapel belonging to Olive Katherine Parr—Beatrice Chase, the novelist—by a Benedictine priest.

The Bishop of Bristol said he did not care to express any opinion on his daughter's action.

For the Great Thanksgiving Feast

The Pilgrim Fathers may or may not have had ice-chests in those first "Colonial homes" with which they provided themselves. But had they dwelt in the steam-heated homes of today they would have needed plenty of ice to protect the Thanksgiving Feast.
Turkey, dressing, celery, olives, vegetables, jelly, relishes, pies, puddings, cakes, fruits and preserves—all these good things can be kept fresh and delicious by a generous supply of pure, crystal-clear Boston Ice. For prompt service

CANCER FIGHT IN BAY STATE IS PRAISED

That Massachusetts is leading all the states in the war on cancer, and that gains had been made in this Commonwealth's effort to combat the disease, were points in an address by Dr. Richard C. Cabot, noted authority, before a conference of specialists at the new Pondville Hospital in Norfolk.

This hospital, a new institution for the treatment of cancer, was lauded by Dr. Cabot as the "least depressing institution I know of."

The conference was attended by many notable medical workers, including doctors on cancer educational committees, working in 16 cities and towns in Massachusetts. These communities are: Boston, Lowell, Worcester, Lynn, Springfield, Pittsfield, North Adams, Fitchburg, Leominster, Gardner, Great Barrington, Greenfield, New Bedford, Newton, Fall River and Malden.

Robert W. Kelso of Boston presided and in charge of round tables were Drs. Herbert L. Lombard, Ernest M. Daland, Mary R. Lakeman and George H. Bigelow.

Dr. Cabot's topic was "Cancer as a Responsibility of Every Citizen." He said people today were less able to bear their burdens than were their forefathers; that the doctors of today had made progress in the battle with cancer, and that they have more encouraging things to say, and that they had something to offer in treatment of the disease.

He lauded the work being done in Massachusetts when other states are doing practically nothing. He said Massachusetts was leading in many endeavors, in treatment of the blind, of the feeble-minded, and in social service work in the hospitals.

Dr. Bigelow, State health commissioner, was praised by the speaker as a man of action, as one who was "getting things done."

"I predict that in six years, at least ten other states will be following this Commonwealth's example," said Dr. Cabot.

"As to winning the fight against cancer, we cannot claim too much. We must keep working, working.

"If we are to care for those that need care, we must always face facts."

New York Society Balks at $300,000 for Opera Boxes

New York, Nov. 20 (INS)—The high cost of being among the who's who at the opera today brought protests from various members of New York society and threatened to impede plans for the new Metropolitan Opera House.

Some of the boxholders declared that $150,000 a box was okay but that $300,000 for a ten by ten-foot space, even though set in the famous diamond tier, was outrageous.

The latter sum may be the assessment necessary to boxholders for the new edifice.

FIRST HARVARD FILM RELEASE ANNOUNCED

"Reel" life at Harvard, scenes of undergraduate life in class and out, is the first film announced for release today by the new University Film Foundation that aims to educate via film.

The object of the organization is to operate in connection with Harvard University, a completely equipped center where films and photographs of educational and scientific value may be collected and produced. Plans are being laid for a film library of unprecedented dimensions.

Officials of the foundation predict a wider use of the moving picture camera in the future as an aid in study. Subjects in botany, zoology, fine arts, industrial management, medicine and most other fields of educational endeavor are included in their plans.

The foundation will not confine its work in conjunction with Harvard, but will work with the assistance of other specialists from other institutions and organizations of this kind. The films will be available, the foundation announced, to educational institutions all over the world.

GREEK SHIP OFF AZORES SENDS OUT SOS

Radio calls for help were flashed today by the Greek steamer Alexandria, in distress off Fayal in the Azores.

The SOS calls were relayed to the Chatham, Mass., radio station and in turn this station relayed the message to the steamer Tomalva, which was said to be in the vicinity of the disabled ship.

Several motor launches sent to the vessel's assistance were unable to reach her because of the rough seas. The steam launch Gazelle this afternoon was reported trying to come alongside her. No tugs are available in the Azores.

The last message from the Azores stated that the steamer Alexandria was drifting north of Fayal with her rudder broken.

The Alexandria is 300 feet long, of 2294 deadweight tons. Fayal, one of the larger islands of the Azores, is 2098 miles by shipping lane from New York.

BIG WELCOMES FOR TIRE MEN

Governor Fuller and Mayor Nichols today welcomed the nearly 1000 tire merchants of the Nation as the business sessions of the National Tire Dealers Association convention were opened at the Hotel Statler.

Response was made by Col. H. V. Eva of Duluth, Minn., president of the organization.

J. A. Travers, president of the Boston Tire Dealers Association, announced the program for the second day of the four-day convention and committees were appointed.

A. E. Feragen of the Motor Wheel Corporation was the first speaker of the day, other speakers including Fred Oberheu of the United Motor Service, representing the National Wheel and Rim Association, and Dr. Samuel W. Stratton, president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Tonight, at 7:30, the annual banquet will be held in the Imperial Ballroom of the Statler.

The feature of tomorrow's session will be a re-enactment of the Boston Tea Party at 8 p. m.

KNOCKED DOWN, KICKED IN BOUNDARY DISPUTE

Fitchburg, Nov. 20—Damas Delorme, 64, 193 Snow st., was knocked down, trampled upon, kicked and had his clothes torn and his tools were thrown over a nearby building by Adam Miller, 12 Oakland st., during a boundary line dispute, he testified in the district court before Judge Thomas F. Gallagher. Miller was fined $20. Delorme was putting up a garage wall and removed three fence posts claimed to be on Miller's land. Miller objected and the fight followed.

SCIENCE PRIES OUT SECRETS OF NATURE

Schenectady, N. Y., Nov. 20 (AP)—Reporting on their latest explorations into the unknown, members of the National Academy of Sciences, at its autumn meeting here, are exposing secrets of nature which touch man's pocketbooks or have aroused his curiosity time out of mind.

Exploring the misbehaving molecules of fuels for internal combustion engines, Dr. C. F. Kettering, vice-president of the General Motors Corporation, is able to speak with confidence of the time when more economical engines can be used in automobiles and airplanes.

Studying the squealing radio waves which trouble listeners, E. F. W. Alexanderson of the General Electric Company finds a way to measure their echoes and sees realization of the long-sought method by which aviators may determine precisely their altitude above the ground.

Dr. L. D. Tear of the same company's research staff analyzing the lines of force in the earth's magnetic field and considering the behavior of various combinations of metals, comes upon the development of a new compass for aircraft, which he describes as more accurate and much lighter than others in use.

Exploring the complex mixture which the bee puts up and man calls honey, Dr. C. S. Hudson of the United States public health service has gathered a store of the hitherto extremely rare sugar, malezetose, which the insects obtain from the pine tree.

HANOVER TRUST DIVIDEND

Depositors in the commercial department of the former Hanover Trust Company will receive a Christmas gift from Bank Commissioner Roy A. Hovey in the form of a 3 per cent dividend on their deposits.

Payment of this dividend was authorized today by Judge Pierce of the Supreme Court, and it will be paid before the holidays. It will make with previous dividends 66 per cent of the entire commercial department claims.

Commissioner Hovey said that he has adjusted and settled with the approval of the court claims of the Polish Industrial Association, and the estate in bankruptcy of Charles Ponzi, amounting together to $1,443,600.90, and this settlement left claims presented and allowed of $1,236,080.29 against the commercial department of the bank.

The commissioner has on hand cash amounting to $60,367.14, and of this $37,082.41 will be required to pay the dividend authorized by Judge Pierce, which is the seventh dividend to be authorized.

In figuring the claims on which a dividend may be paid, Commissioner Hovey said he has not considered unclaimed deposits of $56,425.41 and rejected claims of $161,565.92.

COOLIDGE STANDS PAT ON FARM RELIEF VIEWS

Washington, Nov. 20 (AP)—Whatever recommendations on farm relief are to be made by President Coolidge to Congress next month are expected by him to be substantially in line with those he has previously submitted.

The President feels he has fully set forth his views, in his opinion, has been indicated in his message to Congress and his speeches. The negative side, or what he considers should not be done, has, in his judgment, been adequately presented in his veto messages concerning the McNary-Haugen bill.

AUTOIST IS INJURED BY FALLING POLES

Rutland, Vt., Nov. 20—Two automobiles were struck by falling poles and one of the occupants was sent to a hospital for treatment when a high wind sent a section of power line crashing into the highway here. The storm, following a heavy rain, which ended a serious drought in the forests in Central Vermont, also caused a fire in the Standard Oil Company building. Damage was slight.

The cars of Arnold Myhre and James H. Quinn, both of this city, were struck and badly damaged by the falling poles. Myhre was seriously cut and bruised.

HOOVER'S PLURALITY IN VERMONT 45,964

Montpelier, Vt., Nov. 20 (AP)—Vermont's vote for President gave Hoover 90,404 and Smith 44,440, according to figures announced today by the canvassing board for presidential electors. There were also 338 ballots cast for the prohibition party's electors.

Quincy Police Hunt "September Morn" Mystery Man

Quincy police want to find an unidentified man whose dates are mixed, causing annoyance to residents of Wollaston who have occasion to walk along Beal st. toward the depot mornings.

That the stranger has his dates mixed is apparent because he appeared in a "September Morn" garb on the street this morning—20th of November.

He seemed to show up out of thin air and walked along the street a short distance, then vanished. It was his second appearance in "birthday" lack of garments.

BANDITS GET $3500 ROLL

All signs pointed to a clean escape early today of the four young bandits who stole a telephone company automobile containing $3500 in South Everett, by the unusual and original method of pushing the car away with their own automobile.

The car is one of those used to collect the nickels and dimes from the coin box telephones. In it was an entire day's collection. The robbery, one of the boldest that the Everett police have ever contended with was performed with a speed and resourcefulness that amazed witnesses.

The money car in charge of Ralph S. Johnson of 6 Otis st., Wakefield, was parked in front of 108 Bow st., Everett. He was making a collection in a store nearby and he heard the sound of breaking glass and rushed out into the street.

As he did, he saw two young men smashing the windows with iron bars. He was so surprised that he yelled at them and they cried out that he was going to shoot.

Then they got into a large touring car in the rear and it started up and pushed the money car right under the eyes of its driver, up Bow st.

They arrived in this fashion at the Boston & Maine railroad bridge at Broadway and Main st. Here one of the men dived out of the big car and he steered the money car down a small hill into Paris st.

They stopped their car there and the four got out and attacked the money car with the iron bars that they seemed plentifully provided with.

In a few seconds they had smashed into the money box and had taken the contents. They then got back into their car and raced away.

Runaways Led Back to Family Bathtubs

The last of the Roxbury "Mohicans" who wandered out on the broad highway for adventure, but couldn't seem to get out of Roxbury, were led home to family bathtubs today.

They were Joe Burns, 13; his brother, Harold, 11, both of Downing st., Roxbury, and Frank Tracy, 12, of Vernon st., Roxbury.

The fourth member of the original quartet wandered home himself yesterday, lured by his mother's larder.

Early today the parents of the Burns boys went on the hunt themselves.

They found all three—asleep—in an unfinished house in the Logan's woods section. Harold was asleep in a cement bag, while Joe and Frank were snuggled together on the floor of a closet.

Harold looked like the survivors' list in a flour mill explosion. Joe and Frank had an appearance similar to the Two Black Crows.

The boys were being scraped and scrubbed at home when a State agent arrived to take Joe back to Lyman school, from which he is on parole.

Here's a Hot One! They've Found 'Synthetic Coal!'

Pittsburgh, Nov. 20 (AP)—The making of synthetic coal, to all appearances the equal of natural coal, out of cellulose, was described to the second international conference on bituminous coal at Carnegie Institute of Technology today by Friedrich Bergius, German chemist.

Cellulose is a chemical obtained from wood, cornstalk, and various plants which is used as an element of many commercial products from silken stockings to auto lacquers and gunpowder.

Bergius described numerous tests that he tried to find out whether it was chemically exactly the same as nature's coal. He found that of the cellulose used all but ½ of 1 per cent was recovered; that is, that from 11 pounds of wood he had virtually 11 pounds of coal. He calls it "end coal."

As a final test he subjected it to the latest modern process of liquefying coal, which is attracting the major attention of the present coal congress. He said it liquefied like real coal, producing the same unmistakable oils, acids and ketons.

"The results of our investigations," Bergius said, "show again that the end coal resulting from cellulose is very closely related to natural coal; that this end coal is of an aromatic nature and that it therefore is more than likely that a considerable proportion of natural coal is derived from cellulose."

TROLLEY RUNS WILD; 20 HURT

Pittsburgh, Nov. 20 (INS)—Twenty persons were injured, some seriously, during the early rush hour today, when a Homestead street car ran wild down four blocks of a hill, crashing into an East Liberty trolley and cutting it almost in half.

Both of the cars were filled with persons en route to work. Unconscious passengers and those who were seriously injured were placed in passing automobiles and rushed to the hospital.

HUSBAND SLAIN IN TEXAS BANK REWARD PLOT

Emory, Tex., Nov. 20 (AP)—A widow's allegation that her slain husband and another man were led into a fake bank robbery, "framed" by six men, three of whom were West Texas sheriffs, and then shot down for the $5000 rewards their alleged slayers expected to collect from the State Bankers' Association, was on file here today.

Mrs. Mary Hansen made the charge in a $100,000 damage suit against the association and Sheriffs Reeder Webb of Rector county, A. C. Francis of Midland county and Bud Barefield of Upton county and J. W. B. Hogan. Two other men named in the papers were not made parties to the suit.

William Carl Hansen and an unidentified man were killed at the door of the Citizens' National Bank at Odessa, Tex., Nov. 25, 1927. Mrs. Hansen charges that to collect the standing reward posted by the association for dead bank bandits the three sheriffs, Hogan, "Red" Wood and J. H. Dumas, executed the alleged conspiracy.

Wood and Dumas are under indictment charging murder and conspiracyy to murder in the killing of two supposed bank robbers at Rankin, Tex., some time ago. They are slated for trial soon. They were indicted largely through efforts of Ranger Capt. Frank Hamer, who charged that "a murder ring" had been spawned of men desirious of getting $5000 rewards for each man they could lead into "faked up" robberies.

The Bankers' Association posted the reward last year.

The couple, both of whom were out of work and penniless, Allen being a war veteran, were taken to the hospital after the husband was found wandering about in a dazed condition. He was taken home by a pedestrian who discovered Mrs. Allen unconscious on the floor.

PATHE ENGAGES EDDIE GOULDING FOR FILMS

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Copyright, 1928, by Universal Service

LOS ANGELES, Nov 20—Pathe isn't taking a back seat for any one these days. What with RCA capital back of them they are out to go get bigger and better talent. Saturday Edmund Goulding put his signature to a contract to direct and write stories.

Barney Glazer with whom the negotiations were made realizes that Eddie Goulding has as many ideas as any man who ever lived. They may not be practical but if there are two excellent ideas out of ten that is an average that any studio can count on.

Eddie hasn't let the grass grow under his feet. It was he who first gave Joan Crawford her chance and saw in her the making of a star. He has made tests of Carol Lombard and expects to groom her for stardom and make another Joan Crawford of her.

There was a rumor that Eddie would direct Gloria Swanson in "Clothes." That reminds me that "Clothes" is a short story and has been purchased for the glorious Gloria and will, in all likelihood, follow "Queen Kelly." It's to be another United Artists release.

"FROM Congress to the Movies." Wotta! Wotta title! That might really happen to young Juan Sedillo of Santa Fe, New Mexico, recently signed by the Fox Film Co. Senor Sedillo was graduated from the Unifrom the University of from the University of Arizona. He is about 25 years old and is said to bear a striking resemblance to Rudolph Valentino.

Having been graduated from law school he went in for politics and ran for Congress. He might be practicing law in New Mexico if one of the Fox agents hadn't seen him and invited him to come to Hollywood for a test.

The test proved acceptable and Senor Sedillo will make silent pictures and then later, if his voice is suitable, he will make a Movietone for the Fox Co. Many a good lawyer has gone wrong that way, or perhaps I should say many a good lawyer is willing to go wrong that way.

SHARON LYNN has been engaged by the Fox Co. to sing the theme song for the "Follies." You are asking what theme song means, since it is the most frequent word used these days in the talkies. It is the song that carries through the principal feminine singing part in the Fox "Follies." Clark and McCullough are also down for a skit. Other numbers are being added each day. In fact, our movie Follies is going to give the stage revue some real rivalry.

WHAT about Bebe Daniels who last week bought her contract from Paramount? There is plenty to tell about Bebe these days. First of all she is building a new apartment house to be called Daniels Arms. It is to have a swimming pool, gymnasium and all the comforts of home. But life isn't all building houses for Bebe. She has had three most interesting offers but she is taking her time to make up her mind. Wise girl!

YOU can believe anything of the Warner Brothers these days. When we printed the first story that they were negotiating with First National several people in Hollywood thought someone should appoint a sanity commission. Now I am about to report another rumor nearly as exciting.

The Warners are negotiating with Shuberts for their theaters throughout the country. Whether the Shuberts will sell or not is another question. The Shuberts are one of the most powerful theatrical concerns in the world and I should think it would take considerable pressure to say nothing of the mint at Washington, to swing the deal.

POLESE SEDAN, not a motor car but a musical comedy singer, has come to Hollywood. His name ought to be a help, don't you think? Well anyway, he plays an important part in "The Comedy of Life," Milton Sills' next picture.

Another bit of news, gleaned from First National studios, is that "The Changeling" has been changed to "The Captive Woman." Oi, Oi, Oi! What can I say to this? Also Paul Perez has been signed to do the titles for the same picture, and let me tell you another bit of gossip.

"Synthetic Sin," Colleen Moore's latest picture, is being sent to New Jersey for sound effects. You ask, how come, with Warners' whole studio full of Vitaphone. Well, it seems they have so many Warner Brothers pictures and so many previous First National operas to do they just haven't enough apparatus or time to care for any more pictures.

A WISE man is Jed Buell, manager of the Westlake Theater. He knows his public and he never lets the grass grow under his feet when he has an idea. At his theater are held many of the previews of the most important pictures. Not wishing to be behind the times he has installed a machine for sound pictures. Hereafter, when there is a talkie to be previewed, it will be shown at his house. Can't you see supper dishes in that neighborhood being stacked?

Washington, Nov. 20 (AP)—A confidential report of an investigation made by experts to determine the best means of carrying out the Boulder Canyon dam project has been received by President Coolidge.

The President has not had opportunity to examine it and does not intend to make it public at this time because it was given to him in confidence to be used in connection with his recommendations on the subject to Congress next month.

A full report of the investigation, which was ordered by Congress, will be ready for the members of Congress when the next session convenes early in December. The committee, appointed some months ago by Hubert Work as Secretary of the Interior, includes three engineers and two geologists

RESCUE MOTHER FROM QUARRY

Mrs. Stephen Montani, 25, of Quarry st., Quincy, a young mother of only a week, was rescued from death in the waters of the old Shea stone quarry near here hom today by her brother, John Shepard, who discovered her sudden disappearance.

Clinging desperately to a rock and suffering from exhaustion and immersion, Mrs. Montani was hauled to safety and taken to the Quincy City Hospital, where she is being held for observation.

Her brother and husband, who were home at the time, told police that Mrs. Montani, suffering a sudden spell of mental depression, had rushed from her home and disappeared down the road. They followed and found her in the quarry pool. She was up to her neck in water and apparently attempting to save herself.

Watertown, N. Y., Nov. 20 (INS)—Dr. Richard E. Sykes of St. Lawrence University, Canton, N. Y., announced today that F. L. Carlisle & Co. of New York city has offered the school $20,000 annually for five years to establish a department of forestry.

Begins Cashing In His Long Sought Millions

San Francisco, Nov. 20 (AP)—A quest for wealth which started in boyhood began to bear fruit today for George Campbell Carson, who grubbed the desert for nearly 30 years in a vain search for gold and then in the evening of life invented a reverbatory copper smelting furnace which at last promises to make him a millionaire.

The first returns to Carson for his invention were announced here when his attorneys said the United Verde Copper Company had made a settlement in the suit which he brought charging infringement of patent.

Almost simultaneously came word from Tucson, Ariz., that judgment had been entered in his favor in a suit against the Phelps Dodge Corporation and the Calumet & Arizona Mining Company.

Carson recently was awarded a favorable decision against the Anaconda Copper Mining Company in the United States Supreme Court.

Although the amount of money accruing to the old prospector and his associates cannot be computed in exact figures, it is said the total will be between $7,000,000 and $20,000,000.

POLICE HUNT YOUTHS WHO ATTACKED CLOTHING MAN

Police are investigating an attack on Jacob Melnick, proprietor of a second-hand clothing store at 1268 Washington st., who reported being struck on the head by a gun wielded by one of two young men. The youths fled, according to Melnick, without robbing the store, and his injury was treated at the City Hospital.

He told police that the pair, both about 23 years old, entered the store and that while one was trying on an overcoat the other struck him with a gun butt.

HE COUGHED SO BAD PEOPLE STARED—HAD TO LEAVE "MOVIE"

His Cough Worried Family Ordinary Remedies Did Him No Good

COUGHED WORSE NIGHTS OR WHEN INDOORS

"My husband months ago saw a doctor and was told there was nothing wrong with him, but that cough clung to him night and day. He would come from outdoors into a theatre or the house and soon he'd be hacking and barking terrible. Right in the midst of a movie he'd have to leave his seat. Neighbors commented on it.

"He even took Cod Liver Oil, although he hated it, and quit before it did him any good. I finally told our doctor and he said, 'Men are all alike and you can't blame them much so go get him a big bottle of Lineonine [illegible] taste [illegible] Flaxseed, Eucalyptus [illegible] far better than Cod Liver Oil and works quick.

RESULTS WONDERFUL

"He liked 'Lineonine' so well he took it before meals until the whole bottle was gone. It not only stopped his cough—it built him up fine. I never saw medicine work such wonders before. Anybody with a cold or cough should use Lineonine—and children love it."

A cough is dangerous this time of year. Well stocked druggists have Lineonine, 50c or $1.00 sizes—or send dollar bill for large bottle parcel post. Kerr Chemical Co., Brentwood, Md.

CHAPTER 20

EDDIE found that he was beginning to worry so much about the apparent hopelessness of his love of Marian Thorndike that he was [illegible] his perspective on other matters [illegible]. [illegible] he told himself, was a [illegible] of weakness. With difficulty he tried to convince himself that Martin Thorndike was only one element in his life—that other things were quite as vital.

A bitter self-reproach gorged him for mooning and moping around so far, he had done little or nothing to make himself worthy of his love for the golden spirited girl, gently bred and sensitive and gloriously perfect, who would be violently repelled from him did she but know the sordid background of underworld life he had lived through.

In his bedroom he walked to the mirror and faced himself in the looking glass.

"You got away from the muck of the game in New York, Eddie Regan," he told himself scornfully. "The trouble is that some of the muck is still clinging to you. You're trying to climb up among the stars before you've cleaned yourself of all the dirt you've brought down here with you. If you cared as much about her as you pretend to, you'd pitch in and do something that would make a real man out of you. You're a great guy for dreaming but when it comes to work you're not so hot."

He went to bed, awoke in the morning with a new eagerness to get to the fields. If human labor could cleanse the soul, and strengthen the fiber of man he would work as no man had ever worked before. He would do the work of two men, three men. With his axe he attacked the trees in the woods furiously and felled gigantic crashing lengths of timber. Later, with Tobe on the other end of the crosscut saw, he furnished three-fourths of the energy that sent the blade eating through the wood. With the heavy logs in his arms he built stack after stack of drying piles.

"I've got to work like hell!" he muttered.

The petty tasks of the farm he delegated to Tobe, saving for himself the heavy muscular efforts. In the burning up of energy he found that he was harassed less by vain yearnings and caustic jealousy.

When fall came he would have enough wood cut and corded to bring in a sizable sum of money. The money though, was not important—with an out-reaching kind of intelligence he understood that effort, and effort only, counted. To Tobe, Eddie's efforts seemed superhuman. The old negro was used to the back-breaking labors of Southern farmers and he looked, almost with fright, upon the Herculean industry of Eddie.

"Mistah Eddie, you is certainly gwine tear yoself apart wid dis

U. S. ARRESTS ANGER CANADA

Montreal, Que., Nov. 20 (INS)—Alleged "high-handedness" of United States immigration authorities was coming in for a great deal of criticism here today and developments may lead to the exchange of opinions by the two federal governments.

The cause of the latest trouble is the statement by the Fraser Brace Engineering Company, Limited, contractors for a dam at Fifteen Mile Falls, near St. Johnsbury, Vt., that 70 of the laborers engaged at the site were arrested by immigration officers and that following inquiries, a score of them were held in jail for some days.

Four or five of the men are said to still be in prison.

H. R. Landis, United States commissioner at Montreal, today said the arrests followed discovery of the fact that a large number of men whose applications for entry had been turned down had actually crossed the border for employment on the power dam construction at East Barnet.

Charles E. Fraser, president of Brace Engineering Company, said the men were taken into custody without warrants.

AMMUNITION BLAST KILLS 12 IN FRANCE

Vincennes, France, Nov. 20 (AP)—An ammunition factory exploded here today. Twelve persons were killed and many others were injured. The number of wounded was thought to be high.

The factory, which was Government owned, was situated only a half a mile from the walls of Paris. It was operated under supervision of the War Department and the 12 dead included both soldiers and civilians.

The factory specialized in ammunition for small arms. Rifle cartridges were scattered over a large radius by the violence of the explosion.

STRESEMANN WINS ON VOTE IN REICHSTAG

Berlin, Nov. 20 (AP)—The Reichstag today rejected a motion of non-confidence in Dr. Gustav Stresemann, the foreign minister, by an overwhelming vote of 219 to 93.

The motion was introduced by the German Fascisti and those who supported it were the Fascisti, Communists, the Christian farmers and the German Nationalists.

The foreign minister, who yesterday presented his views on the various international problems before the Reichstag, came off victorious.

$3,000,000 YACHT FOR FINANCIER

New York, Nov. 20 (INS)—Harrison Williams, millionaire utilities financier, will build a $3,000,000 yacht, the largest individually owned vessel in the world.

The plans call for a [illegible]-ton yacht which will probably carry a crew of [illegible] or 80.

Williams built the Whim III, a 47-knot speed boat, to "commute" between his home at Bayville, L. I., and Wall Street.

"Clear and colder" was the prediction offered by the weather man today. HUB RICHER TODAY BY MILLION

Boston today became richer by $1,764,845.32 in its annual settlement of accounts with the State.

City Treasurer Frank L. Brier handed over to Deputy State Treasurer Karl H. Oliver the city's check for $6,612,040.70 and in return Oliver put into the hands of City Collector George H. Johnson the State's check for $8,[illegible].

The transaction took place in the State treasurer's office at the State House.

This is the first time in three years that the city gained in the actual exchange. In 1927 Boston was the loser by $1,14[illegible].72. The city's loss in 1926 amounted to $[illegible].

The increase this year is almost entirely due to earnings on the stock market represented in the income tax collected by the State for distribution to the cities and towns. Boston's share of the corporation tax amounted to $2,531,773.

The total amount distributed by the State today to the various municipalities including Boston was approximately $21,000,000. This is $2,000,000, in round figures more than was distributed a year ago, and about $[illegible],000 more than in a normal year. The net balance in favor of the cities and towns in the exchange today was $15,030,400.

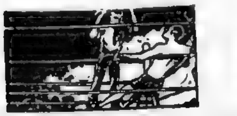
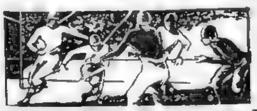
Harvard Regulars to Start Against Bulldog



BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS
[illegible]TEREST — NEWS THE DAY IT HAPPENS



FRENCH AT HALFBACK BERTH

Lineup to Be Same as in Early Games of Season; Putnam Likely to Pilot Eleven

By TED LYNCH

Harvard's regulars still hold their titles. Harvard will stick to its regular varsity lineup in the Yale game. Coach Horween apparently feels that his varsity left its bad football in the Holy Cross game and that the veterans will play heads-up football against the Elis in the Bowl on Saturday.

Coach Horween has put a cloud of secrecy over all the varsity workouts this week. He will not give out any official lineup.

With Captain French and Bill [illegible] again within the fold it was expected that there would be a shift with the Crimson leader playing quarterback and Tommy Gilligan or Sam Batchelder filling in at halfback.

Horween did not announce any lineup after the first session.

FRENCH AT HALF

But the Crimson mentor killed the [illegible] of the expected shift when he placed French at halfback and had [illegible] at quarter with Elliott Putnam. Harvard will again turn to its midget quarterback.

With French not being used at quarter, Harvard will probably start Dick O'Connell and Jim Douglas at end, Red Barrett and Tom Clark at tackle, Jim Trainer and Bill Ticknor at guard, Ben Ticknor at center, with a backfield of Elliott Putnam, Arthur French, Dave Guarnaccia and Wally Harper.

This reluctance to start French at a new position and insert Gilligan or Batchelder at halfback comes as a distinct surprise. Harvard's quarterbacks were decidedly off color in the Holy Cross game.

Horween has always favored Putnam, and the Harvard coach will probably start Elliott at the end of this week.

GILLIGAN ON BENCH

Tommy Gilligan is still a substitute player for the time being at least. With French at halfback, Gilligan may [illegible] either Wally Harper or Dave Guarnaccia today.

Before a capacity house of 14,000, almost double the number that ever witnessed a hockey game here, the Bruins and Les Canadiens will dedicate the Boston Garden as a winter sports emporium tonight.

For three years the advancement of professional hockey has been handicapped by the insufficient seating capacity of the Arena. Due to the fact that there were less than [illegible] seats at the Arena, thousands of fans were unable to see the Bruins in action since they have taken their place among the greatest teams in the N. H. L.

MANY SEATS LEFT

There will be room for all at the Boston Garden and hockey, within a few years, will take its place in the sport world with baseball and football.

The Boston Garden will be packed, due to the success of the Bruins last season, coupled with the reinforcements which have caused predictions to be made that the Adams team is on its way to its first Stanley Cup. And the Les Canadiens, the most colorful team in the game, will oppose the local pride.

With the exception of "Tiny" Thompson, the Bruins will start its last year's team. Thompson, who came to the Bruins from Minneapolis, has replaced Hal Winkler in the nets. Thompson is a Calgary boy and a brother of the Rangers' star.

TINY IS GOOD

"Tiny" has two National League games under his belt, Pittsburgh and Ottawa, and he has only been "beaten" twice. Any youngster capable of breaking into fast company as auspiciously as has Thompson will bear watching. In his first game Thompson shut out the Pirates and went to a two-all tie with the Senators.

New Harvard Coach
Horween to Retire
Casey in Line

Eddie Wins Chance
His Freshmen Win
Coach Must Succeed

By NICK FLATLEY

HARVARD PREPARES FOR NEW GRID COACH

EDDIE CASEY will be the next Harvard football coach. There have been mutterings about a change over across the Charles, but naturally no news will be sprinkled around until after the Yale game is out of the way. That's the big spot in the Crimson year, and everything else is subversive.

Nick Flatley

Harvard had bright dreams this fall. A great squad came up from the freshman team, and some fine veterans were hanging around. The Army game was a jolt, but that shock was forgotten when Dartmouth was flattened. Then Penn spilled the hopes all around Soldiers Field, and the hammer throwers went to work.

The team that held so much promise did not develop, so something had to be wrong. The coach, whether guilty or not, gets all the blame. Arnold Horween has had three years at Harvard, and has failed to produce a winner. So, in the nature of events, he must go. Football is the most inexorable taskmaster of them all.

There has been general criticism of the Harvard methods this fall. The football boys who peer down from the rim of the Stadium have been unable to understand why Tommy Gilligan has not been made a regular back. The young man appears to have more of the gridiron fire than anybody on the squad.

These same boys have been puzzled about the case of Dick O'Connell at end. Dick looks to be miles ahead of anything in the way of wings on the squad, yet he's fighting for a place with the Yale game only a few days off. The young men have been concerned, too, because Putnam has been kept at quarterback, when, they claim, it has been demonstrated he cannot drive the team.

These boys take their football with fearful seriousness. They give up good jobs, so they may gather around on Saturdays and decide among themselves what it's all about. They all used to play the game, so naturally they know something about it.

They have had thumbs down on Coach Horween ever since the Army game, and the rank and file of the Harvard supporters seem to be with them.

HORWEEN HAS A PROSPEROUS AND COMFORTABLE BUSINESS, SO HE SHOULD WORRY

Eddie Casey [illegible] Perhaps he can bring it back.

CASEY'S SUCCESS MAKES HIM LOGICAL CHOICE

EDDIE CASEY has won a shot at the big job. He has been coaching the Harvard freshmen for the past three falls. And his teams have been sweeping along to uninterrupted glory. His cubs have flailed the Yale youngsters three times in a row.

They have scalped the Dartmouth Indians thrice. They walloped the Tigers in the last game of the series two years ago. They have been taking on all comers, and bringing home a souvenir football each Saturday.

It is logical to reason that a coaching system that can grind out successful kid teams year after year, can carry on if it is handed the varsity to work with. There has been no gridiron success at Harvard since the days of Haughton, and the old grads have nearly died unanimously under the strain of the last ten years.

Young Mister Casey knows football. He was a great player himself, although he weighed slightly less than a healthy pint of peanuts. He has been uniformly successful as a coach. He built up a fine team at Tufts from almost no material. Then he was brought back home to Harvard and started to perform miracles with his freshies.

It has been our opinion for years that Harvard football players were drilled too thoroughly on theory, and not sufficiently in actual combat. May be wrong, of course, but the inability of the team to rise to the occasion in the pinches would tend to indicate some such condition.

Casey's freshmen teams have won reputations for resourcefulness and courage. Eddie had his schooling under Haughton, who had an uncanny knack of making the theory and technique of the pastime fit the particular individuals that appeared on the squad. Harvard has appeared to be trying to fit any and all material into the Haughton moulds. A decade of big game failure would seem to prove the futility of this.

A VICTORY OVER YALE SATURDAY WILL PROVE, HOWEVER, THAT HORWEEN IS THE GREATEST COACH HARVARD EVER KNEW.

Football is heart[illegible] Horween [illegible] and judgment [illegible] complainers.

EDDIE MOST SILENT OF GRID HEROES

EDDIE CASEY, who, as has been mentioned, will just have to be the next coach, is a quiet, easy-going individual. He's one football star who doesn't broadcast the game. He keeps his thoughts to himself, and sprinkles them around when he gets his squads together.

He's one of those softly efficient birds who soon sell the idea that an order is that and nothing else but. Coaches at any of the big colleges have to put up with certain kinds of interference. The old heroes come back to help. The alumni boards suggest and advise.

The boys who can disregard all that, while apparently agreeing, get along. The chaps who protest never linger long. The boys who follow veiled orders generally wind up with poor teams. The good coach, and by that we mean the winning one, has to be a combination of politician, slave driver, diplomat and magician.

The quiet Mister Casey may be the genius that Harvard has been paging. His freshmen teams give him the right to demonstrate his stuff, whether or no.

Who'll Play?

Baseball 4 Appear at Howard This Week

Boston will this week have a chance to see baseball players when they are enjoying themselves off the baseball field, for a quartet of diamond stars, under the leadership of a former Red Sox star, are appearing at the Old Howard Theater.

In the lineup is Hugh Bradley, formerly with the Red Sox; George Crable, formerly with Brooklyn; Joe Gleason, of the Texas League, and Bill Walsh, of the Southern League.

Bradley was with the Red Sox in 1910-11-12. In 1912, which was the year the Sox beat the Giants in the World Series, Bradley's work was of great importance. He knocked a home run over the left field fence in May that year, which was the first time anyone had ever knocked the ball over that particular sector of the barrier.

THREE NEW TEAMS ON NORWICH '29 SCHEDULE

Northfield, Vt., Nov. 20—Three opponents not played by Norwich this fall appear on the Cadets' 1929 football schedule of eight games announced tonight by Maj. Potter, director of athletics.

The new comers are the United States Coast Guard Academy of New London, Ct., Worcester Tech, and Brown.

ARGENTINE SWIMMER BREAKS WORLD'S RECORD

Buenos Aires, Nov. 20 (AP)—The Argentine Olympic swimmer Alberto Zorilla yesterday broke the world's record for 400 meters backstroke, swimming the distance in 5 minutes 4" 2-5 seconds. The previous record held by the Belgian swimmer, G. Blitz, was 5 minutes 59 seconds.

MR. BOSTON

By Jack Conway

RAT-a-tat-tat!

Mr. Boston pushed his head through the crowd that blocked the entrance to Dan Toland's gym to see what the excitement was all about. He found Jack Sharkey, Boston contender for Gene Tunney's vacated world's heavyweight championship, whaling away at the small punching bag.

Sharkey did four rounds on the small bag, three on the heavy bag and wound up with three rounds of rope skipping.

"How does Jack look to you," Mr. Boston asked Manager Johnny Buckley.

"One hundred per cent."

"Did you notice how he stepped around? His legs are perfect, [illegible] [illegible]"

"Sharkey looks ready to go," said Mr. Boston laughingly. "When does [illegible]"

"The [illegible] of December," replied Buckley. "Sharkey will [illegible] at least once a month [illegible] He intends to fight his way to the [illegible]

"I have agreed to let Sharkey [illegible] three times for Tex Rickard [illegible] Sharkey [illegible] at the Yankee stadium next June."

MR. BOSTON dropped into Sharkey's dressing room to say hello.

"How does it feel to get back into action?" asked the veteran.

"Just like getting some home cooking after eating at hotels for a month or so."

"How's the leg you injured last summer?"

"It's all right now," replied Jack. "I kept it in a cast for six weeks as the doctors ordered. Long walks through the woods then toughened it up and it does not bother me any more."

Johnny Buckley pushed his head into the room.

"When do I fight?" demanded Sharkey.

"Looks as though the big fellow is eager to get into action," [illegible] Buckley as he smiled good naturedly.

OUTSIDE in the gym Mr. Boston met Paul Bowser, leading wrestling promoter.

"I told you the other day," opened Paul, "that [illegible] the best card the wrestling game has ever had. [illegible] the Sonnenberg-Stein bout at the Arena on Thursday night [illegible] quite a gathering."

"And don't be surprised if Stein [illegible] happens to [illegible] Sonnenberg," [illegible] Joe Alvarez, [illegible] wrestler. "The Lion is training on raw meat."

"He [illegible] all the raw meat he can jam into his system to [illegible] Sonnenberg," chirped Bowser. "Anyhow it should be SOME [illegible] plenty of cash customers on hand to enjoy it. And I'm [illegible] of a promoter to like to see the cash customers steamed up over anything which I promote."

MR. BOSTON then turned his attention to the ticket prices at boxing shows.

"I believe Eddie Mack made a wise move in deciding on a $4 top for the Maloney-Risko bout," said the veteran. "The $10 and $7.50 tickets for the Finnegan-Routis match failed to cut [illegible] with the public despite the fact the show was sponsored by the Crosscup-Pishon Post and also had the opening date at the new Garden.

"Mack proved at Braves Field that a price scale of 50 cents to $3 for the average show is the most popular one with the fans. The Maloney-Risko bout is a high class attraction and at $4 the fans are receiving a bargain.

"Mack declares there will be plenty of pasteboards at $1, $2 and $3 which is as it ought to be. Boston is not yet ready for a $10 sock at a boxing show. I have always maintained that even a championship battle is not worth more than $5 a ticket."

Passing the Puck

By BILL GRIMES

Bill Stewart, who managed the Waterbury club of the Eastern League last season, has been appointed a referee in the National Hockey League. His first major circuit assignment will come tomorrow night in New York.

Bill refereed for two years in the Can.-Am. League. He was appointed to his new post by Cooper Smeaton of the N. H. L., after Smeaton watched Stewart referee a game between the Rangers and Springfield.

Accompanied by Leo Dandurant and Louis Letourneau, Les Canadiens hit town this morning, and immediately went on a tour of inspection of the Boston Garden. The Flying Frenchmen were free to admit that Boston has the last word in hockey rinks and they were loud in their praise of George Funk, the architect.

A smile crept over the faces of Howie Morenz and Auriel Joliat as they saw the large playing surface of the Boston Garden. Leo Dandurant remarked that it would be to the advantage of the Bruins to [illegible] heavy sweat shirts tonight so as to lessen as much as possible the chances of pneumonia developing from the breezes created by Les Canadiens.

Dit Clapper, one of the most popular players that ever wore a Bruin's uniform, will receive a hearty welcome from the fans this evening. Dit is regarded as a local product as he went up to the N. H. L. from the Tigers and the Bruins followers have not forgotten that it was Dit who caged the goal which returned Boston a winner over the Pirates.

The Tigers were put through a long and strenuous practice by Manager Eddie Powers yesterday and they will have another work out today before they depart for Philadelphia. Manager Powers is stressing on the value of combination play and the "puck hogs" will not be tolerated from now on.

Jean Dubuc is trying to get Babe Ruth to attend the opening of the Canadian-American League season in Providence next Thursday night. Unless Babe has made previous arrangements he will gladly attend for he is a real hockey bug.

Newark and Philadelphia are supposedly the softest teams the Tigers have to meet this season. If that is true what kind of minor league teams are playing for Providence, Springfield and New Haven?

The Can.-Am. League has been noticeably strengthened and it is going to be a rugged battle all season. If the Tigers hope to stay in the race they must spend some money and get an aggregation which will measure up with the other teams. Eddie Powers will bring his offense through but he needs strength on his defense, players who will and can step in and break up attacks by body contact, instead of trying to sweep or poke check.

Unless Harvard and Tech start regular practise immediately that opening college game at the Boston Garden is going to be a sad affair.

Spunk Sparrow played a wonderful game of hockey for the Arrows against the Tigers. Spunk showed more stuff last Saturday than he ever did while a member of the Bruins and if he tends to his knitting and cuts out the rough stuff, Philadelphia will be up in the race.

Yale Drills to Smooth Attack for Rest of Week'

ELI TRIES TO IMPROVE PASSES

Team in Secret Sessions; Garvey Will Be Held in Reserve at Start of Game

New Haven, Ct., Nov. 20—Yale today opened a program of dummy scrimmaging and signal rehearsing for the Harvard game. Head Coach Mal Stevens has laid down the rule that actual football practice is over for the season at Yale.

Only the controversy with the [illegible] remains of the [illegible] Max Eddy's [illegible] West Point and [illegible] campaign at Yale for two seasons, will make another vigorous effort to [illegible] at Yale on the forward passing [illegible] against Harvard.

Daily practice this week will probably be secret and the lineup which will be sent against Harvard will [illegible] remain unknown until [illegible] Saturday. [illegible] at centre, Palmer [illegible] Miller at fullback but [illegible] in these positions [illegible] until [illegible] began scrimmaging at Princeton.

CHARLESWORTH 3RD STRING

Yale's rush line is likely to be started against Harvard exactly as against Princeton. Dropping the veteran Charlesworth to reserve after because of his reversal of form, owing to a broken leg received last fall, will probably be permanent.

Yale is likely to use three snapbacks against Harvard, beginning with Loesser, switching to Palmer who played both guard and tackle in the Princeton game and ending with Charlesworth.

Stevens is delighted at finding Loesser uninjured as a result of the Princeton game. He retired at Jingletown badly exhausted, and slightly bruised but a thorough physical examination today revealed that he suffered no severe injury and can be relied upon to play most of Saturday's game.

Norman Hall will be injected into the rush line as first reserve guard against Harvard, with Stewart, Kell, and Spiel in reserve in the order named.

Capt. Eddy and Frank Marting gave a remarkable exhibition at Princeton by remaining in the tackle positions throughout the game. McCalmont and Ladd may play part of the Harvard argument.

QUARTERBACK NOT CHOSEN

The original pair, McEwin and Walker, will probably be started with Crile, Hickok and Godman likely to be called upon. The most uncertain position in the entire eleven is quarterback.

Injuries received by Hoot Ellis, may prevent his playing more than ten minutes against Harvard and he is likely to be reserved for a scoring emergency, instead of starting. Bob Wilson, third-string field general, opened the Princeton game but failed to direct the forward passing campaign successfully.

Although the veteran Johnny Hoben has failed to control forward tosses since he injured his shoulder last year he may start against Harvard. Ellis and Wilson are set for relief service.

Brewster Loud, will head Yale's crashing attack against Harvard. He starred in this role at Princeton and although Garvey will probably be used for ten minutes against the Crimson, Loud will open the artillery drive.

GARVEY IN RESERVE

Garvey and Charlie Snead, the fourth string halfback who showed surprising offensive form at Princeton, will be in reserve. Kempton Dunn, who replaced Chauncey Hubbard, whose ankle was turned at Princeton, has a slight edge on Hubbard for the right halfback role.

Colorful Nicknames of Sport—Runyon

By DAMON RUNYON

"SMITTY THE LUG" was a gentleman who years ago engaged in the devious occupation of separating other gentlemen from their bees and honey, as we have it down in the Antipodes—meaning their money.

I am back on the subject of monickers again.

"Smitty the Lug" committed [illegible] man out of his taw, or bankroll.

[illegible]

In the parlance of the [illegible] Science, [illegible] meaning [illegible] meaning the term comes down to us from the old English prize ring.

"MAX THE DUDE" apparently succeeds to [illegible] "Dan the Dude," whose [illegible] always dressed up to the moniker.

"Pete the Goat," who is Mr. Peter Stone, connected with the Sour Science, got his monicker from Tad, the cartoonist, the greatest monicker-maker that ever lived. "Yellow" is a saffron-hued party who trails the gallopers.

"Scar-face Al" Capone of Chicago came to his title years and years after it was worn with more or less distinction by "The Scar-Face Kid" of New York. "The Scar-Face Kid" had a badly scarred map.

"Kid Dropper" was a New Yorker, who started out in life as Kaplan, and came to an untimely finish not long ago. "Frisco," the comedian, whose right name is Louis Joseph, took his name when he was dancing around the Chicago deadfalls, because Jack Jarrott, a great dancer of those days, was calling himself "Alabama," and Joe thought he ought to have an equally distinctive monicker.

He had never been in San Francisco when he titled himself as he is best known today.

PADDY MITCHELL, the New York West Sider, who was "topped" only recently, was called "Paddy the Link," and the best explanation I have been able to get of that monicker is that he made desired connections between mobs and jobs. He linked them up, in short. Thus "The Link," or, more commonly, "Linky."

There used to be a well-known ballplayer out on the Pacific Coast who rejoiced in the monicker, "Red Dog" Devereaux. "The Teeth-Fighting Smoke" was a no-legged colored person who used to beat the trains on the Western divisions with astonishing facility, considering his physical handicap.

[illegible]

THE prize ring has produced a lot [illegible] and other Nevada mining camps, [illegible] got the tag from the way he [illegible] the old time swinging doors.

I hasten to explain to the new generation that all Western saloons used to have swinging doors between the main entrance and the bar. I have often wondered why that was. They were sometimes a nuisance to a man seeking quick egress.

"The Gizzard Hunter" was a party around Southern California who was reputed to have a penchant for hunting up other people's gizzards with a knife.

"Big" and "Little" So-and-So are common monickers to this day. I know forty "Diamond Joes," or Petes, or Harrys, as the case may be, generally so called because they are fond of wearing diamonds. Or stealing 'em.

"HYPE" IGOE, whose square monicker is Herbert, was so skinny as a young fellow that he had the appearance of a devotee of the jolly old hypodermic needle.

So a fellow out in San Francisco called him "Hypo" years ago, and the tag has stuck to this day and age, with an "e" in place of the "o."

"Hype" is now as fat as butter, and you wouldn't think he had ever been thin. But I recall when he was two pounds lighter than a straw hat.

"Indian Bill," a citizen of the western slope of Colorado, was one of Mr. William Harrison Dempsey's bodyguards at the Battle of the Busted Banks in Shelby, Montana. His other name is Lines, if memory serves.

And down in Southern California there is a person who wears a monicker that is known to thousands, the same being "Tia Juana Red." If you visualize a gent with a flaming crown, you are 'way out of line. "Tia Juana Red" is no gentleman. "Tia Juana Red" is a lady.

1929 Pro Golf Tilt In Santa Barbara

Cleveland, O., Nov. 20 (AP)—Like the national amateur, the Professional Golfers' Association's annual tournament will be held in the Far West next year. Holding their annual convention here yesterday, the professional golfers decided to hold next year's meet at Santa Barbara, Cal., early in December. The national amateur is to be played at Pebble Beach.

Alex Pirie, veteran pro of the Old Elm Club, Chicago, was chosen president for the third successive year and the following officers were re-elected: W. H. Way, Cleveland, Middle Western vice-president; Willie Ogg, Worcester, Mass., Eastern vice president; J. A. Patterson, Los Angeles, Far Western vice-president; J. B. Mackie, Inwood, N. Y., treasurer, and Joe R. Mitchell, Montclair, N. J., secretary.

Although eligibility requirements were tightened up two years ago, the association reported an increase in membership. There are about 1900 members. The convention ended today.

Princeton Players Relax at Seashore

Atlantic City, N. J., Nov. 20—The Princeton University football squad, 18 in number, accompanied by Head Coach Roper, who came to the Seaview Golf Club for a rest, returned home.

"The trip to Seaview did the boys a world of good," said Fitzpatrick, veteran trainer of the squad. "The boys not only received a thorough rest, but enjoyed themselves as well.

"The team will be in good shape for the Navy game. Eddie Wittmer's leg is coming around nicely, and Mike Miles, who was bruised up a bit, will also soon be ready."

There was no drilling for the Tigers at Seaview, but they will get back to hard work today.

Yanks Are Coming

Country towns in Oklahoma, Arkansas and Missouri will be treated to a baseball game next spring. The Yanks are going through.

Weather, showery; track muddy.

Northwestern to Have Dry Gridiron

Chicago, Nov. 20 — Northwestern University's first football game with an Eastern opponent since 1910 and the biggest intersectional game in the gridiron history of the Evanston school will be played at Duche stadium Saturday before a record and capacity attendance of 50,000.

Nine seasons ago the Purple, then the "Fighting Methodists" in popular nomenclature, lost a four touchdown decision to Rutgers but in the intervening period has met no other Eastern team on the football field.

Every precaution has been taken to prevent prospective offensive brilliance from being washed away. The new field cover will assure a dry turf at game time and other steps have been taken to keep the sod in good condition.

The Wildcats will welcome a dry, or at least a semi-dry, playing ground, for it will be the last opportunity of 1928 for them to make amends for the three conference defeats they have suffered in their five big ten games, a record similar to that of last year.

CONN. AGGIES NO SETUP FOR B. C.

By JOHN B. GILLOOLY

Bill Kelliher, freshman coach at Boston College who put the Eagle eye on the Connecticut Aggie eleven while the Maroon and Gold was maltreating Canisius, comes back to Joe McKenney with the news that the next B. C. adversary is not any setup.

The Connecticut Agricultural College is represented by a good small team. But B. C. is represented by a good big team.

The Nutmeg Aggies trampled over Rhode Island State while Bill looked on and won by a score of 24-0. The team was immense in this victory over a great rival. But the opposition at Fenway on next Saturday should make a different story.

The Aggies have a fairly good offense with a medley of forward passes and running plays. Defensively the team is much more robust. Its goal line has not been crossed this fall and that's a lot.

EAGLE OFFENSE GREAT

But the Aggies gallant goal line defense should be shattered by Boston College's aggregation. Joe McKenney is wise in keeping his team at fighting pitch and not underestimating the Aggies. For his team to let down for a few days at present might lose the edge for the Holy Cross combat.

After a day's rest the B. C. squad will get down to hard work once more. Every man on the squad excepting Austin Brosnan will be on Alumni Field when McKenney starts the day's practice.

Brosnan may be out of the Holy Cross game. [illegible] for either Austin or the B. C. team. He may lose his letter after a valiant fight all fall and B. C. will lose a rugged and reliable reserve guard.

Zeus Wilczewski, whose being idle on the B. C. bench gave Brosnan his chance, will be back in the moleskins. Zeus watched the entire Canisius game from the sidelines but might have entered the contest if he was badly needed.

BEST B. C. TEAM STARTS

Coach Joe McKenney will start the very best team he can muster. Orders will be given to get as many points in a few minutes as possible. If the Eagles can tally three touchdowns the first team will be drawn from the engagement and the substitutes will have a [illegible].

Scott Temporary Soccer Prexy

Providence, R. I., Nov. 19 (AP)—Dave Scott of Boston was elected temporary president of a new soccer governing body at a meeting of American Soccer League Club owners and representatives of the Southern New York Association and New England soccer men at a meeting held at the Biltmore Hotel here tonight.

Alfred Hollywood of New York was chosen temporary secretary.

Membership in the new association will be open to all State associations, leagues and clubs. A cup will be offered, for which all member clubs will be eligible to [illegible] competition play for the cup [illegible] under the same rules as those in use by the U. S. F. A.

The young huskies are residents of Washington Heights and are playing a formidable game.

Points About Making a Happy Marriage

By Beatrice Fairfax

An Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

NOT long ago, [illegible] on this column, [illegible] "Uncle Dick," in which he stressed the importance of young girls remaining at home, in preference to leaving the protection and love of the family [illegible] for the [illegible] and [illegible] Uncle Dick's [illegible] a [illegible] began anew.

Let [illegible] Uncle Dick's [illegible] was especially [illegible] Certain [illegible] has given one other girl [illegible] Here is her letter:

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

"The other evening I read Uncle Dick's [illegible] how much I would like your advice—and his—on my problem.

"I have never been really bad or weak [illegible] sense of the word, but I have been rather [illegible] when I [illegible] a person [illegible] I am [illegible] and had a good job in [illegible]

"Since I was very young I have [illegible] But instead of [illegible] young men of about my own age I have gone [illegible] a [illegible] of [illegible] was [illegible] times. As [illegible] to make my heart [illegible] me time [illegible] good. I just [illegible] respect [illegible]

After a while I realized I had gone [illegible] without going too far, it was time for a change. I was gradually getting lower and lower.

I decided to stay away from my old friends [illegible] I made the acquaintance of a [illegible] of my age and she introduced me to others. At first I [illegible] to myself at them, I thought they had never known a real party. Now I enjoy [illegible] good times.

The whole trouble simmers down to this: For about 18 months I have wanted to go into a hospital to train to be a nurse. My mother says no. My father says he will swear out a warrant for me if I go. Do you think the whole trouble with me is [illegible] I pity myself [illegible] Or just what is it? Am I stubborn? Did I grow up too soon? I know this is a long letter, but please try to [illegible] all at sea."

"UNDECIDED BABE."

Did I grow up too fast [illegible] Not too fast but fast, would be my [illegible] For that matter [illegible] all growing all the time, changing viewpoints, making starts, finding congenial comradeship with different types of persons?

All this is splendid. For stagnation is death. The moment we stop changing and growing mentally, we stop living and merely exist. Life and love and romance are constant new growth.

So you have not been "really bad," my dear, but you are now growing mentally and spiritually, so fast, that it is hard for you to keep up with yourself. Isn't that true?

Regarding the profession of nursing, which attracts you, Babe, why not wait a few years and see whether the glamor holds. Any good training school will tell you they prefer to accept student nurses [illegible] twenties [illegible] By that time if you are still keen about being a nurse, which is a very noble calling for women fitted for it, your parents will probably consent [illegible] will realize you are old enough and settled enough to know what you want and why and how.

Never hesitate to follow the highest call, the best impulse, for the [illegible] call to growth and [illegible] All this may seem to have [illegible] with romance and the [illegible] directly. For [illegible] of [illegible] when a girl is growing so fast that her taste in friends and sweethearts cannot help but change rapidly.

You will never stop growing mentally and spiritually, I hope. But by and by, you will begin to understand the entire process and also yourself better. By that time you will have reached a point when it will be wise to marry because you will know what you are doing and the kind of husband you want—one who will grow with you. All happiness to you and to him!

The Mind Has Limitless Possibilities

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.

Famous Authority on Health and Psychology.

IT is a mistake to believe that we are all born mentally equal. It is likewise a mistake to believe that such inequalities at birth limit or fix the degree to which the mind may be developed.

Heredity, to be sure, plays an important role in establishing the pattern of our minds when we first see the light of day. The potentialities or possibilities contained, as they [illegible] dormant and inherent in the plastic and immature brain substance of one child, differs from that of another. And that surely sounds like [illegible] for the child who is not lucky enough to have inherited as good a brain as his neighbor.

But, first of all, we must remember that the inequalities at birth are not so marked after all.

Secondly—and this is really the crux of the whole matter—each and every individual, no matter what his heredity, is possessed of so much undeveloped mental power when he is born that it may well be described as limitless.

What you are, what you have been, where you come from, doesn't [illegible] when it comes to the question of what you may be able to do with your mind.

For no one ever gets all the best possible out of his mind. Nobody ever reaches his capacity of mental development. Even the greatest men and women could be greater still. And since those who do not happen to be born with unusual [illegible] need not feel discouraged, for [illegible] brain cells will carry them [illegible] know how, just about as far as they themselves decide.

Of course, they must know how. They must learn how. The person [illegible] a specially alert intellectual endowment very often achieves much more in life than the one who [illegible] accomplishment coming easy to him simply because the first tries harder and makes it his business to learn how to improve himself, while the latter takes [illegible] for granted, is careless and lazy, and therefore soon falls by the wayside.

If you are conscious of your own limitations, but keep on trying to overcome them, you can accomplish in a way that will surprise you. Understand your own mind and you will release the latent powers that beget success.

Make your thoughts and actions constructive and uplifting. Thus you obtain the maximum amount of efficiency out of each brain cell while your mind as a whole becomes accustomed to superlative activity and soon runs by habit smoothly, without unnecessary stress and strain, and effectively.

But do not sidetrack or sidestep facts. No one of us is perfect. We all have weak links in the chain of our mental and emotional makeup and these places that undermine and retard our progress should be discovered and repaired.

Discouragement may beset you every now and then. It may seem to you that you are not measuring up to your desires and ambitions.

Do not let temporary setbacks, however, stop you from pushing ever onward and forward. Your mind has plenty of power to help you over the rough places. Your mind, I want to emphasize again, [illegible] possibilities.

Meditations of a Wife

By HELEN ROWLAND

TO most women, marriage is an adventure at 20, a compromise at 30, an experiment at 40—and a mistake at 50.

Love is that sudden revulsion of feeling, which makes a man fancy that one sort of girl can make him happy for life, simply because he happens to be deadly tired of the other sort.

No woman will deny the marvelous powers of the psychic mediums as long as they can induce a dead man to carry on a connected conversation with his wife—which was more than he probably ever did in life.

In these days of amateur-vamping almost any 16-year-old can outpet a professional amateur and make Cleopatra look as innocuous as a pink-tea ice-cream soda.

A good "line" may thrill the flapper, but a sophisticated girl can distinguish a machine-made compliment from an inspired one as quickly as one can tell a $5 hat from a $40 import.

Lots of the most important debates are extemporaneous and most of them on such trivial subjects as who left the burning cigaret on the piano and who shall give the dog his Sunday bath.

Those worry-wrinkles between a married woman's eyes are merely "service stripes" acquired by long years of watchful waiting and militant matrimonial duty.

The main difference between a man's wife and his private secretary is just the difference between a dutiful proximity and a piquant propinquity.

The modern woman's cross-word puzzle: To find a man whose heart contains a four-letter word meaning romantic affection.

The panel breaks the severity of the front, and forms slenderizing lines. The sleeve is a close fitting model. A narrow belt at low waistline holds the fulness of the dress. Printed velvet combined with plain crepe is suggested for this design. Moire and satin or all satin would be equally effective.

The Pattern is cut in 8 sizes: 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52 inches bust measure. To make the dress for a 44-inch size as illustrated in the large view will require 3⅞ yards of figured material and 1⅝ yards of plain material, 35 inches wide for facing the panel, the belt, and the dips at the hem edge. The width of the dress at the lower edge with fulness extended is 2¼ yards.

TIGER LOVE by EUSTACE HALE BALL

Story of a Dancer of the Night and Her Love

CHAPTER 37

"A MOST beautiful creature, indeed, your Highness!" and Rasta Valika's voluptuous eyes and thick lips exuded an impression of the intense eagerness that the Rajah showed over his brandy and soda, as they sat together on the modernized roof garden of the royal palace.

"You must be in love with her, boy," declared the potentate [illegible], as he stretched out his long legs, yawned with regal indifference to ordinary social inhibitions and beckoned to a liveried servant garbed in the latest British fashion, for a fresh cigarette. "I must be becoming very old. Soon I will have to be ordering my own statue carved for the hall of the ancestral gods of my dynasty; for women no longer thrill me as do golf, and polo, and even these cinema romances of the wild life in America. The ladies—bah, they too, are growing old! They are born old, nowadays, in the better circles of society and from what I read in the latest European and American magazines young misses of 12 and 14 can give their grandmothers lessons in more things than rolling hoops and dressing dolls."

Seated near [illegible] prince and his premier [illegible], foremost lady of the [illegible]. Despite the [illegible] and the ob[illegible] on the [illegible] palace, [illegible] of Mayfair [illegible] beauty of the [illegible] the modes of [illegible] land [illegible] beauty of her [illegible] the great bloody [illegible] of an ancient ruby shone from a [illegible] and surrounding her [illegible] anklets encircled her rounded [illegible] were encrusted with precious stones in settings [illegible] have thrilled lapidaries [illegible] value and beauty. Parted [illegible] in the middle, her hair was drawn [illegible] over either ear in the coiffe which marks the Hindu aristocrat. And clustered about her were several women servants who alternately fanned her, brought this or that Oriental dainty or cool drink and made a great gesture in general to satisfying her petulent whims.

She raised her long-lashed eyes, and peered at the Rajah with a baffling look as she caught his words.

"And so the ladies are growing old, indeed?" she asked, with an irritation ill concealed.

The Rajah Glanced Away from The Dancing Girls

The Rajah glanced away from the dancing girls, pirouetting on the floor in the colored lights of modern stage contrivance. His score or more informal guests, scattered about the spacious roof, were more engrossed in their chatter and drinks than in the entertainment which was a customary accompaniment of these little soirees of the very up-to-date ruler of Abadipur.

"Well, most of them seem to be, especially in the mornings!" replied the Rajah, puffing at the long, long stem of his Picadilly cigarette holder. "Daylight and moonlight no longer look the same as far as romance is concerned, when the years [illegible] me creeping on. Even you, my dear Salima, might experiment with advantage in some of these barbarous methods of weight reducing which we see advertised in the white man's magazines . . . I have a clipping downstairs in my library . . ."

"Your Highness flatters me, indeed!" The favorite of the harem expressed her inner complex [illegible] knocking aside a fruit drink just proffered by a serving woman, so skillfully that she sent its red stain over the white garment of her youngest lady in waiting. "Once I was told that beauty and love never grow old in the eyes of the lover."

"Once I was young myself," [illegible] rejoined the Rajah, turning toward his premier. "And where was it that you saw this girl dancing, Rasta Valika? I am rather tired of the ordinary palace entertainers. Perhaps I may summon her to dance for us here [illegible] next week. I have a rather extravagant entertainment planned for my royal kinsman who comes from Burma to escape the [illegible] of his wife . . . He, too may be a bit bored and desire a new sensation. As for me . . . I am getting to be [illegible] . . ."

Salima [illegible] "The Cobra," [illegible] away her eyes that her royal master might not observe the sparkle of anger which flamed in their depths. Once her petty tempers had amused him greatly and brought new jeweled playthings for appeasement. Of late, she had noticed, he was becoming a trifle testy.

"Ah, Highness," and Rasta Valika's graceful gesture swayed toward Salima the Cobra with Chesterfieldian eloquence. "With such a ravishing queen for your own household how could one expect you to have a personal interest in some mere slip of a girl! Indeed, she is quite slim and delicate in her lines, although if I may say it, every ounce a woman . . . But slenderness has never been the fashion of the court . . ." He was rewarded with a grateful look from Salima's deep eyes, and the premier smiled secretly at the thought of a joyous reward for these generous thoughts.

The Rajah's eyes turned toward him thoughtfully.

"And Where Was She Dancing?" The Rajah Next Inquired

"Slim? Young. Well, that would interest my kinsman. Who knows! It might start a new fashion in our own court. And where was she dancing?" he asked.

"In a village, a few miles from Abadipur," came the measured reply. "Her parents, an old musician and his wife, guard her jealously against all men, as I am told. She is very fair in skin, dances with a wild abandon of fiery virginity—if I may use the phrase, and, although it would never satisfy the propriety of the court ladies, with . . . with very scanty clothing."

"That would never do in the palace!" snapped Salima. The Rajah turned to smile at her. "We have high standards here . . . just as at the palace of Buckingham," and the favorite of the harem had a look of supreme beatification on her face. A few giggles from her serving women were silenced with a sharp glance.

"And will she be in Abadipur soon?" asked the Rajah, with gathering interest.

"Only dancing upon the street corners and in the market places, Your Highness," replied Rasta suavely. "Of course, that would be too commonplace, too vulgar to deserve your esteemed attention. And, naturally, it would never be permissible in the palace entertainments especially when the wives of the British officers and merchants are here . . ."

"Quite right! The Rajah arose, tossing his cigarette aside. "We will probably have to exclude the ladies. Young . . . and few draperies, eh? Well, that's not very extraordinary in modern society on the Continent and in those faraway United States which I must visit some day. But, we of the ancient families and customs, must keep our harems protected against such things . . . Probably, Rasta, I'll go out for a long walk some evening when she reaches the city." This in a low tone! "And let me know when she does. I'm bored with life and want something new."

Rasta Valika smiled expansively and then he answered softly:

"Your Highness' commands are my desires. By the way, sire, the maiden's parents are fearful lest she be stolen from them. She is very beautiful, very innocent and has been guarded from all lovers. Being especially white she is apt to attract the attention of some of the British in the city. They have asked through my office that perhaps one of your Highness' policemen might be assigned to guard her against . . . against . . . Well, sire, you understand, how even in this day some of our people still have such religious devotion, low as [illegible] cers and musicians may be, [illegible] they dare to protect their [illegible] against the insults of the supposedly white race."

The Rajah's brows drew into an angry frown. The adroit premier had touched upon a delicate subject. Himself, an Oxford man and bearing all the surface mannerisms of a European, Kamkura-Din remained within his heart a true Oriental. Pride of race had become an obsession with him. Outwardly [illegible] with the British conquerors [illegible] and, he who had smilingly rendered homage to the English King's viceroy at the Durbar, resented with an undying bitterness the [illegible] which he knew was his own [illegible] in the great British dominions.

"Naturally I will protect her," he answered, his mouth hard beneath the crisp gray mustache. "Tell her parents to have no fear, humble though they be. They can have a guard for her night and day, if need be. I am delighted that some of my people still fear and hate the 'conquerors.' Some day, my turn will come!"

The potentate strode away angrily, leaving Rasta unctuous and happy in the knowledge that the seeds of his plot had been planted.

Kamkura-Din, a military figure of magnificent height and truly regal bearing, sauntered across the roof garden of the palace to [illegible] a group of fat old Hindu [illegible] wealthy native merchants [illegible] that had remained aloof [illegible] British guests.

"I am pleased to see that [illegible] the [illegible]. The [illegible] was [illegible] I may turn the tables shortly, for next week at my entertainment, I will have the whitest and the most beautiful dancing girl who has ever come to Abadipur! I trust this will please you. . . ."

He joined them in the champagne, which [illegible] their prejudices [illegible]

"I think I described her rather well," [illegible] that I [illegible] saw her, [illegible] Rasta [illegible] he [illegible] walked toward [illegible] [illegible]

"Who is this low-caste creature you have been describing to the Rajah, Rasta?" demanded that lady, as she waved aside her attendants for a little tete-a-tete. "And why such a fool as to direct his thoughts so? Do you realize the unrest among the people because [illegible] he is ignoring too much the [illegible] customs and the [illegible] all these modern ways of the British?"

"Adored lady," Rasta [illegible] furiously, "do you not understand. You are far too lovely, too delicate, too heavenly a soul to be insulted so by one to whom you have given loyalty and [illegible] for more than [illegible] [illegible] has never been [illegible] by those of any angel of our dreams [illegible] power to [illegible] and humiliate our ruler in such a way that he may come to [illegible] holding his throne?"

The woman's eyes glittered.

"I do not understand. I know only that I [illegible] my mother and her mother [illegible] before them [illegible] of our family and [illegible] [illegible] he spoke of [illegible] [illegible] within the sacred walls of a royal harem."

"You understand it then," Rasta Valika [illegible] the [illegible] Abadipur will [illegible] among themselves when [illegible] royal and [illegible] is [illegible] a common street dancer, of the lowest, most vulgar caste in all great India!"

Salima's eyes sparkled ominously.

"She is a common [illegible]," continued Rasta. "Am I not clever to have planned this? And I [illegible] it all to [illegible] queen of beauty and [illegible] of love and gentleness, that [illegible] you. . . . I have even greater plans than these, which some day I will [illegible]"

"But what will you do with the girl when he has made a fool of himself?" A fearful look came into Salima's face.

For answer Rasta Valika smiled and nonchalantly snapped his fingers.

Three-Minute Trips

By TEMPLE MANNING

FEW people have heard about the pearl fisheries in Scotland but it is a fact that there are extensive oyster beds on the Scottish coast and inland rivers.

The work is done in two different ways, by wading in the shallow water and from boats in the deep. The fisherman wears a costume much like that of a diver without the helmet. His only [illegible] is a pair of steel tongs, affixed to a long wooden handle. This is used to lift the shells from the bed of the river. Experience has shown that the best shells may be found where the bottom of the river is composed of a hard shingle. The fishermen are so skilled that many of them can actually tell which of the shells contain the pearl, for there is often a difference in the formation, a raised ridge showing where the pearl has moved in the shell.

Sometimes as many as six pearls may be found in one shell. But all of these are not always perfect. Those found at the bottom or thicker part of the shell, are always flat on one side and are called "flats" or button pearls. These are used for rings, pins and pendants, never for necklaces. The pear-shaped pearl, with the pink lustre is the most valuable stone.

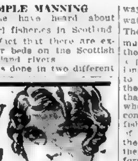
Instant Skin Beauty

WASH AWAY COMPLEXION FAULTS!



Lightens the Skin • Reduces Enlarged Pores • Banishes Blackheads • Eruptions

The newest discovery in beauty culture is that cream of magnesia is much better for the complexion than any soap or cold cream; it beautifies the skin instantly, in the same easy way that milk of magnesia purifies the stomach. It reduces enlarged pores to the finest, smoothest texture, almost as if by magic. Being astringent it drives away tell-tale lines of age; you will marvel at the effect of your first facial massage. It rejuvenates the skin so wonderfully that any woman over twenty-five at once looks at least five years younger. It's a marvel the way easily magnesia dissolves black-heads, corrects oily skin and clears the face of pimples.

And, because it is so mild mothers use it instead of soap for babies. It certainly is a blessing to fine, sensitive skins that soap so easily irritates and wrinkles. Not being a cold cream it can not grow hair on the face.

It removes make-up and extracts impurities deep-set in the pores better than soap or cold cream. Just test it on those clogged nose pores that stand out so boldly. It changes dark, sallow skin to ivory-white at once and fades out freckles better than a bushel of lemons.

Until now cream of magnesia has been used only by New York doctors' wives and nurses. So, only the large druggists everywhere, like Liggett's, have it in stock. The dollar bottle holds three fifty cent bottles. To get genuine cream of magnesia, ask for Denton's Facial Magnesia.

RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

In passing, childhood left me this
To make the long years bright
The memory of my mother's kiss,
Her lullaby at night.

And when first love's bright dream was done
It could not take away
All rainbow loveliness it spun
To veil the common day.

For, sometimes, when the world is cold
And all my hopes retreat
Come visions joyous as of old,
To make the hours sweet.

And as bequests for all my years,
Lest I should go bereft,
These talismans to conquer tears
Childhood and youth have left.

SERMONETTE

This Is the Stuff Your Great-Grand parents Read in "Plain Talk for Plain People"

The above illustration fits today's text—"A Handsaw Is a Good Thing, but Not to Shave With." Think that over, Brother. A pig's tail never made a good arrow. One chap will make a good clerk and another will do better to laugh. A snail will never run a race nor a mouse drive a wagon.

"Send a boy to the well against his will,
The pitcher will break and the water spill."

Never set a cat to watch cream nor a pig to gather peaches. He who tries to make money by betting uses a wrong tool. Hard work and thrifty habits are the right razor, gambling is a hand-saw.

BAER FACTS -:- By "BUGS" BAER

LAST week was the greatest in history of the shock exchanges.

Since Hoover got his citizenship papers as the first duke of the land there have been 45,000,000 shares bought, sold and twisted

The farmers of the muddled West are going to stop growing wheat, corn and rye.

Next spring they are going to raise nothing but huge crops of ticker tape.

Oils, coppers, steels, motors and rails are being knocked off in 10,000-share blocks. There were 6,000,000 shares sold last Friday from 9 to 3

The ticker is running 60 minutes behind the market.

Which gives the shorts an hour to think it over before they dive off the wharf.

A broker's life is an easy one.

But hard to live.

The price of a seat on the shock exchange is now half a million.

This is because there are two buyers to every seller.

The result is that America has more money and everybody is happy. Even a bill collector is treated like a good-will ambassador.

Soaked with the investment spirit, we bought one share of Consolidated Fragments yesterday and then sat back to become independent for life.

At noon it had jumped five hundred points and when the stock ticker blew up from overwork we knew the company was declaring dividends.

Our best tips for today are replaced divots and foreign really, which is a company organized to subdivide Mount Etna into building lots. The company promises free heat with every lot.

Proven Convenience

In 1924 we entered our new banking headquarters and announced a new unit system for checking accounts.

This system divided our depositors into groups, each group assigned to its own tellers. In four years' operation it has proved eminently satisfactory to our customers. All the advantages of the intimacy of a small bank, and greater speed, plus the enormous resourcefulness of New England's largest financial institution, are available to our depositors.

Grand total of stock increases..........................$985,807,231

Sky-rocketing stock prices are no novelty to Wall Street and the speculative leaders who have for the past two years engineered the most gigantic bull movement in the history of the stock markets.

But the breadth and velocity of the November markets, combined with the almost total disregard for the laws of gravitation, have astounded the hardheaded plodders in Wall Street, created a brand new crop of money-makers in the stock market and sent terror to the hearts of the professional bears.

The omission of General Motors from the above list calls for comment, as this has been the only movement of note in which "bi-motors" has not been up with the leaders, if not head and shoulders above the balance of the list. Announcement of hte Melon-cutting for General Motors Corporation took the wind out of the sails of its forward move.

Raio's amazing jump of 108 points has been the sensation of the market, the stock having advanced 250 points from the low of the year. Radio, with only about 1,100,000 shares of stock outstanding, most of it reported in the strong boxes of the big corporations and professional stock traders, is called practically cornered.

New fortunes have been made in Wall Street this year, but the road has been anything but an easy one for thousands of the old-line traders who have made a living in Wall Street for twenty years or more.

Never before in the history of markets have such profits been made by following blind destiny instead of economic facts.

Never before have the most elementary and fundamental rules of finance and investment principles been ignored so completely and never before have strong and powerful bull leaders held so tenaciously to their position.

For a seat on the stock exchange $495,000 was paid this week and for a curb exchange membership $160,000. Membership is of no value unless it is made so by the man who holds it and the natural conclusion is that those who buy the seats expect to make them profitable.

The market will continue to soar until it receives a jolt in the form of some unexpected unfavorable event. It may be an earthquake; it may be a sudden "coming to their senses" of those who are deliriously frenzied over their expected winnings in the biggest stock market on record.

Detroit, Nov. 20 (INS)—Changes of the greatest importance in the official personnel of the General Motors Corporation are in the offing, according to reports in high automotive circles, the Detroit Times says today.

Fred Fisher

Continuing, the Times story says: "The changes are being brought about by the retirement of John J. Raskob as chairman of the finance committee and as a member of the executive committee, and by the wish of Pierre S. Du Pont to retire as chairman of the board of directors.

Name of Alfred C. Howell, who became president of the Ames Shovel & Tool Co. back in 1919, figures in the list of new officials of New York banks. Mr. Howell is vice-president of the Guaranty Trust Co. of New York, which has capital of $40,000,000 and surplus of $50,000,000. Mr. Howell started his career with the Carnegie Steel Co. as an office boy when but 12 years old. His record of experience covers a complete line from production, sales, clear through distribution and to the consumer. He is a member of the Dedham Polo and Country Club, Dedham, and the Exchange Club, Boston.

One might almost conclude Victor M. Cutter of United Fruit foresaw the election of Mr. Hoover and the President-elect's visit to South America early this year when he told the Bond Club of New York that the whole of Latin America stood on the threshold of an economic development which would astound the world. He outlined a few of the possibilities of Latin-American development, using the United Fruit Co. as an example.

President Patrick Crowley of the New York Central adds to the symposium started by this column on railroad electrification by declaring that "Cincinnati presents one problem, New York another, and Chicago still another." He declares: "The local situation must be studied most carefully to develop the lines along which we should move to best serve each particular community, and not with the thought that what has been done in New York or any where else, is the right thing to do at any other place."

President Howard Coonley of Walworth Co. says: "For the third quarter of 1928 Walworth Co. showed a profit of $252,745, after depreciation and interest charges, equal after preferred dividends to 79 cents per share on common. This is at the rate of $3.16 a share per annum. These figures compare with earnings of $111,242 in the third quarter of 1927. For the second quarter of 1928 the profit was $99,163 as against a loss of $251,316 for the first quarter. The third quarter earnings, therefore, wipe out the deficit for the first half year and leave a balance of $100,592 for the nine months to date.

"The tonnage of orders during October was favorable. The improved situation in the oil industry is beginning to be felt and active demand for Walworth products from this field is anticipated. The improved profits were the result both of increased volume and decreased costs. The plants acquired by Walworth in 1925 are showing the effects of the new management and the continuous and very substantial investments in improved equipment which have been made since their acquisition."

Out of patience with apparent inability of Eastern railroad executives to agree on voluntary plan for division of rich eastern territory among four trunk lines, Interstate Commerce Commission has refused to reconsider Pittsburgh & West Virginia case. In so doing, commission reopens door to creation of a fifth trunk line. The Taplin brothers, virtually owners of Pittsburgh & West Virginia, can now go ahead with construction of new line between Cochrane's Mill and Connellsville, which will connect their road with Western Maryland. It is stated on high authority within Interstate Commerce Commission that when it is completed commission expects Taplin interests to apply for authorization to create fifth trunk line out of Western Maryland, Pittsburgh & West Virginia, Wheeling & Lake Erie and Wabash.

Higher margin requirements by brokers are not always copied by banks. I hear of one bank lending 80 per cent on a leading volatile issue on which brokers ask a 30 per cent margin.

We quote from a newspaper: "Persons found that some with small cars were paying more than people next door with larger ones. The same condition will prevail under the new rates." This is interesting, if true, but the impression is that as a rule large cars will be forced to pay higher rates. The real question is: Why should one car owner pay more than another for the same amount of insurance?

* * *

It might be contended that the large cars, as a class, are less apt to be responsible for personal injury accidents than small cars. One can imagine competent lawyers successfully arguing the question before unbiased juries. They might contend it would be as sensible to charge higher fire insurance rates for a large house than for a small one carrying the same amount of insurance.

SALES IN AUTO FIELD FIRM, SAYS CRAM

Passenger car production schedules continue to show about the same degree of curtailment that has been noticeable for the past three weeks, according to B. H. Cram, president of Cram's Automotive Reports, Inc., industry authority.

It is apparent that the industry has reached its low ebb for the fall and, while further declines may take place within the next two weeks, these will probably be so small as to have but little effect on the total. Production for the current week shows an increase of 8 per cent as compared with last week and continues about 70 per cent above that of a year ago—a fact that augurs well for the fourth quarter's total as compared with last year.

Several manufacturers who have been practically inactive during the past three weeks are again turning out assembled cars, and while this output is still small it will increase daily until it reaches a normal footing in about a month from this time.

Sales are firm, the normal slackening being offset to some extent by the stimulation brought about by price cuts on the low-priced models.

The truck branch of the industry shows no great change as compared with last week and continues to follow the same trend as established by the passenger car. Output, while curtailed, is still seasonally high and will increase further within the next few weeks. Sales are firm throughout most parts of the country.

The medium and heavy tonnage models are selling best, proportionately, due to the present uncertainty which exists with regard to the light delivery models which are slated for changes.

Tire manufacturing companies are proceeding on an unusually aggressive mid-fall production basis.

FRESH PEAKS RECORDED IN WALL ST.

Speculative confidence in the New York stock market apparently was restored by the relatively easy manner in which it absorbed the heavy profit taking of yesterday. The run-in of the short interest in Radio just before yesterday's close led to further covering in other high-priced industrial specialties today.

Du Pont extended its gain to 15 points by touching 455. Radio ran up 17½ to a new high at 348, and Case Threshing Machine moved up 18 to a new top at 467.

Curtiss, Wright, Western Maryland preferred, Pittsburgh & West Virginia and Greene Cananea Copper advanced 3¼ to nearly 8 points.

Several large blocks again appeared in the early trading. Liquid Carbonic opened with a block of 75,000 shares at a new high of 101½, up over 8 points, and Transcontinental Oil with a block of 10,000 shares at 14, up fractionally to a new top.

Anaconda opened with a block of 10,000 shares at 110⅝ and then climbed up to 114⅞, a gain of 5¼ points.

New peak prices also were established in the early trading by New Haven, Northern Pacific, American Woolen common and preferred, May Department Stores, Phillips Petroleum, Inspiration Copper, Chile Copper, Otis Steel and Corn Products.

Victor Talking Machine, Mack Trucks, Woolworth, Rossia Insurance and International Telephone recorded early gains of 3 to 4½ points. Bethlehem Steel was one of the few soft spots, yielding a point on realizing.

Foreign Exchanges were steady with sterling cables unchanged at $4.85.

AMERICAN WOOLEN RUNS AT HIGHER LEVELS

Helped partly by the late strike at New Bedford, an influx or orders in the few weeks prior to election has furnished American Woolen Co. with the largest business on its books this year.

As a result of these bookings, operations of the mills are improving rather rapidly and will shortly be at 70 per cent capacity as against less than 40 per cent at the low level earlier in the year. A large number of the larger and important mills have orders sufficient to insure current operations into next year.

Due to the low level of prices and the lateness of the repeat orders American Woolen will probably be unable to avoid reporting a deficit for the calendar year 1928, but it should enter 1929 with a fair budget of orders and a manufacturing momentum that should produce a return of earning power. Of course, a great deal will depend on the January openings.

However, due to the scarcity of goods indicated by the recent hasty buying movement, and to the firm tone of the raw wool markets the company should be able to take a much firmer price stand at the January heavyweight openings which are normally the more important selling season. The outlook is the most encouraging in several years.

GOOD MACHINE TOOL ORDERS LOOKED FOR

In more than one machine tool center the demand for equipment was more active in the past week than earlier in the month and conditions generally appear to be satisfactory, American Machinist reports. Metal-working plants are all busy and in numerous instances where rush orders have been accepted machinery builders are confronted with a shortage of skilled labor. November is expected to be a good month in the New England district.

State Street Notes

NEW Haven at $73 a share hit a new high.

AMERICAN Woolen issues set new tops.

BOSTON Woven Hose & Rubber Co. declared regular quarterly dividend of $1.50 a share on common and semi-annual preferred dividend of $3 a share, both payable December 15.

PARK & Tilford reports profit for quarter ended September 30 was $355,757, against $440,575 in preceding quarter and $222,375 in quarter ended March 31, 1928.

WOONSOCKET, R. I., will receive bids until November 26 for 650,000 4½ per cent highway, water and sewer bonds.

ESSEX COUNTY will receive bids until November 27 for $105,000 tuberculosis hospital renewal notes.

THROUGH the fifteenth of this month Island Creek Coal Co. had mined approximately 275,000 tons of coal, or about the same amount as in the first half of October.

DRAPER Corp. has purchased land in Spartansburg, S. C., for erection of two-story distributing plant.

LIBBEY Owens Sheet Glass Co. stockholders will vote Dec. 5 on retiring $4,000,000 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock April 1, 1929, and changing directorate, probably placing Graham brothers on board.

WALL Street report 2-for-1 split-up of shares of American Telephone & Telegraph Co. was in prospect is denied.

FIFTEEN ships carrying raw silk cargoes will arrive in this country from the orient during December.

WEST BOSTON Gas Co. seeks for authority to issue 12,000 shares of additional capital stock of $25 par value at $25 a share.

FINDER OF LARGEST METEOR IS RESCUED

Taishet, Siberia, Nov. 20 (AP)—Prof. Leonide Kulik, Russian scientist whose single-mindedness in observing the site of the world's largest meteor led to his remaining alone in a Siberian wilderness, has been saved by a mission sent out to seek him.

Prof. Kulik was the leader of a Russian party which found a great meteor last summer, in Yenissey province, Siberia. All the members of his party were taken ill of scurvy and Prof. Kulik sent them home in August. He remained at the scene of the meteor's landing to continue his observation.

The Main Issue

In the Matter of Compulsory Automobile Insurance It Is Neither "Rates" Nor "Profits" but PROTECTION FOR THE BLAMELESS VICTIM

Before we begin to get overheated with reference to automobile insurance rates let us consider the conditions which brought the compulsory law into being.

If, prior to 1927, you had the misfortune to suffer personal injury from the automobile of another, your chances of recovering anything by a suit at law were one in three.

The reason for this state of affairs was that ONLY ABOUT ONE IN THREE CAR-OWNERS CARRIED PERSONAL INJURY INSURANCE.

The number of accidents in which some one was killed, or incapacitated, was at that time about 1000 a year.

This meant that in hundreds of cases widows and children and other dependents—or, as may have been the case, the crippled victim himself—were left to become so many burdens upon towns and cities.

"We traced the fellow down," it was often said at that time, "but everything that stands in his own name is the automobile—and he is paying for that!"

Well, Massachusetts has never been afraid to play the part of the pioneer in legislation, and Massachusetts determined to put an end to this condition. The insurance companies, for one reason or another, opposed the compulsory act. Its failure was predicted. Some months ago, it was represented that the companies were doing business at a loss under it.

The Insurance Commissioner, having announced new rates much in excess of the old, gave up his place in the State Government before the new rates could be placed in operation. His successor—admittedly with much more information upon which to base his course—has reduced these figures 10 per cent.

The objection, nevertheless, continues. Political and legislative prophets tell us "war" will break out as soon as the Legislature is assembled.

SOME car owners will fight for a "flat rate," applicable generally throughout the State. The insurance companies, it is intimated, will seek the repeal of the law.

What mystifies many is why the companies should object to a law which makes every automobile owner their customer. The car owner MUST carry this insurance.

If, under these circumstances, the companies cannot make money, it would seem to be only fair to consider in what way they may be relieved of an unjust burden.

Mr. Frank A. Goodwin, one of the few citizens likely to be accepted as experts on the question, suggests that the way out is to have the car owners be their own insurance company, with one of the State departments acting as their agent.

There being 600,000 pleasure cars in the State, Mr. Goodwin would make a flat rate of $15 for them and charge the 90,000 trucks $25. The 4000 cabs he would assess $50 a year. These rates would bring in $11,500,000.

Having said to the automobile owner, "You MUST be insured," the former Registrar believes—and an army of his fellow citizens share the belief—it is up to the State to FURNISH the insurance, AT COST.

As the expected controversy proceeds we shall hear MORE about insurance-at-cost. The cry will be raised that it would "put the State in business." That cry, we may be sure, will bring powerful support to the side of the Opposition.

But insurance-at-cost has a doughty champion in Frank A. Goodwin who, we also may be sure, will be treated by Beacon Hill with the courtesy and respect that belong to a man who can poll 161,000 votes in a primary fight.

Edward F. McSweeney

A Patriotic American Gentleman

The late Edward F. McSweeney, whose funeral this morning drew to the little parish church in Framingham Center an unusual assemblage of representative men, had taken a valiant part in more than one battle in the common cause.

Made chairman of the board of trustees of Boston's Consumptive Hospital in 1906, Mr. McSweeney remained until the end a leader in the fight against the white plague. He was largely responsible for the establishment of State sanatoriums.

Again, he was one of the first to attempt the unmasking of those authors of school histories who like to picture the rebels of 1775 as a lot of near-reds, and reflect the minimum of credit on patriots like Washington, Jefferson, Commodore Barry, John Sullivan, the Adamses, the Lees and Patrick Henry.

The brave gentleman whose body was returned to earth today was a man's man, the embodiment of moral courage. He had served his country in the Immigration service and his State on more than one public board. In these, and in other positions of trust, he demonstrated intelligent zeal and rugged honesty. He taught by good example. Outside of the domestic circle his untimely passing is mourned by none more sincerely than by those whose privilege it had been to be associated with him.

The Everlasting Question

Either the United States Supreme Court or the League of Nations should decide on this blonde vs. brunette question, definitely and finally. Ever since the brunette Anita Loos wrote her blonde book the issue fits into every domestic argument, influences the directors of stage and screen and invades the realm of commerce at the slightest opportunity.

From a luncheon speaker the Cincinnati Ad Club learned that the blonde is a faster worker, while the brunette is a more careful plodder. Consequently, the speaker said, he employs sixty-eight blondes and only seven brunettes.

This testimony is interesting but not convincing and certainly should not be accepted as proof. For is it not written that some girls are born blonde, some achieve blondness and some have blondness thrust upon them?

Maybe many of the sixty-eight in these offices were pronounced brunettes originally and taking a feminine advantage of the boss' weakness dipped their tresses into molten gold or undiluted peroxide before applying for employment. Better look closely at the roots when you go to the office today, Mr. Speaker. The girls may be putting one over on you!

New York Day by Day

by O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Nov. 20—Back in the outland, the old-time pedlar is almost a memory. In other days he roamed from town to town and door to door with his pack, selling almost everything from a needle to a washtub. He was in a way the news crier in isolated neighborhoods.

In our town, Dr. Thompson used to sally forth in April with his magic eye salve and Indian root blood purifier afoot and returned with the November frost. In that time he covered four states. He built a fine home and left a considerable estate.

It is history that innumerable princes of success were former pack pedlars. Many of them today are stooped from their early burdens. The mail order business untrussed them, along with the automobile and other quick means of transportation.

Instead of the pack pedlar the small town also has countless little specialty shops and roadside hutches. A few pedlars carry on with big motor trucks, but their number is rapidly diminishing. It was a picturesque calling that lost step with the times.

Strangely enough it is only in populous centers that the pedlar is able to survive. There are hundreds of them in New York making their door to door canvasses and prospering. Almost every gigantic skyscraper office building has its warnings: "No Pedlars."

These are not the type belonging to the push-cart army of the lower East Side and uptown Ghettos. They do not carry the shoulder pack but an elegant photographic sample book of their supplies. They are crisp type of alert salesmen.

The modern pedlar is able to offer you copies of great paintings as well as second hand automobiles. Many operate on the small payment plan and maintain large offices. The last of the old-time pedlars in the metropolis are the Armenian rug sellers and velvet coated Italians selling statues.

These observations were inspired by a courtly gentleman who sent up one of those flossily engraved visiting cards bearing only his name. He shook hands in the manner of an old friend, deposited himself in the best chair and it was 15 minutes before I was conscious he was the old-time pedlar in a new setting. He had a leather compact that fitted snugly in his inside coat pocket containing his ware. And, of all things, he sold scarf pins. I gave him the address of a fellow who wears only bow ties.

NOW and then one of those workworn East Side push cart pedlars is escorted across town by a policeman. He is headed for a police station for not having a license. Able to speak but a few words of English, his bewilderment is pathetic. Especially when speakeasy patrons come to the doorways to watch and snicker.

A STATISTICIAN discovers that few New York men marry if they have not marched to the altar before reaching the age of 35.

THE dangerous age, so breach of promise records show, is between 45 and 50. It is after 45 that aging Romeos toss caution to the winds and fly to the amorous adventure. This is the age when they are likely to write those honeyed letters which are later read by 12 perfect strangers with a giggle and perhaps a sigh. The adroit gold digger with her red hot lips and air-cooled knees is always angling for the bachelor nearing 50. He assays high in pure gold.

IN a cafe one night recently a doddering philanderer was called to the telephone. A girl friend skipped over to his fair companion and inquired: "What time do you have to wheel him back to the Old Men's Home?"

"Just as soon as I can cry him out of a pint or so of pearls," was the retort.

IN the same cafe one of those annoying waiter captains was making suggestions while we were trying to inspect the menu. There should be some way an adult person could order a meal all by himself. As one who does the eating, I am fairly obsessed with the quaint conceit I can do a major part of the thinking.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

NEW ORLEANS looks pretty much like any other big, prosperous city when you first come into it. The usual railroad terminals, warehouses, the usual littered streets—chimneys, telephone wires, street cars, electric signs—all the ugly, necessary paraphernalia of modern life. So this is New Orleans—and they had told you it was so romantic!

Later, having a few hours to kill, you decide to walk. You walk, indifferent as to direction, so colorless is the scene. Presently you find that the street has narrowed, is cobbled instead of paved. There is a wooden awning above you, leaning balconies, small huddled shops with fly blown windows—beaded funeral wreaths, racks of dusty jewelry, holy images. You are in the old French quarter, though that does not interest you for you are seeing, still, only the blank, masked face of a strange city.

Then suddenly something vivid flickers past your eye and is gone. You stop, wondering—turn and look about. What was it that touched you like a call—a hand? Beside you one of the low, weather-beaten doors hangs open. Beyond stretches a long paved passage, tunnel dark, which opens at the end into a sudden, jeweled blaze of light. Warm golden air, spattered on damp, red tiles—lacework of fern in hanging Indian jars—a waxy vine with deep magenta flowers—an old wrought iron seat—the lisp of water in a shallow pool.

Everywhere in the old French quarters you may find them, these hidden patios. They are the spots reserved for friends or family recreation or a quiet, twilight hour with God. The bustle of the streets does not enter them nor does the city grime fall upon their trailing vines or shadowed galleries. They are truly the heart of New Orleans and after you have once found them you feel them forever after—like a mysterious presence, perfuming the dusty streets, whispering beneath the uproar and the clatter.

New Orleans will never again seem to me like any other big, prosperous city. Always I shall feel that secret beauty which waits behind the little, weather-beaten doors.

Plain people are so often like that. Many a time I have judged people as I judged New Orleans, putting them down as cammonplace and colorless. Then some day stumbled suddenly upon some small, secret entrance to their hearts and so came upon living loveliness.

Most of us, I suspect, have a hidden patio where there is beauty, and a song and—sometimes—a quiet, twilight hour with God.

Bulls, Bears—and Hogs

by Herbert Kaufman

Wall Street is a mirror of national confidence. When stocks are high, so are hopes.

The prevailing bull market is just America's bet that she won't stop expanding, that big ideas aren't petering out, that ambition isn't tiring in the wing, that tomorrow is twitching with growth pains.

Graph hounds, chart wavers and statistic quoters may shout their pens hoarse with contrary sentiment—financial Jeremiahs may rave of days of doom, but these minority reports are drowned by hurrahing ticker tape and the swish of skyrocketing securities.

The Federal Reserve vainly flings storm signals, while trading volume mounts new peaks.

Speculation is in a bullish temper, and the big bruins are all licking their wounds.

We're gambling on continued prosperity, full employment and undiminished spending capacity—on freight loadings, automobile output, radio expansion—on aviation development, crop yields, beef prices—on mail order sales and sound retailing.

We foresee no strikes, and we sense wider markets for copper, steel and structural materials.

We're backing realities, not wild dreams of jungle richness or wilderness mines.

We've never yet had a Mississippi Bubble or a South Sea swindle—a Hooley smash or a Whittington Wright scandal.

We're hard-mouthed in our enthusiasms and rebellious to the sudden bit.

But we're temperamentally too hardheaded to become real runaways, and usually shrewd enough to stop at the brink of financial disaster—no signs of which yet cloud local horizons.

Nobody knows where or when the limit will be reached—or how suddenly the pools will about face, and take their profits.

Common sense and experience protest that what goes up must come down — to balance sheet levels. So caution plays safe and pouches its gains.

It's the destiny of all hogs to wind up in the slaughter pen.

"V" VERSES by Herbert Kaufman — Vim Vigor Victory

There never lived a failure yet
Who didn't think that he had met
An unfair share of woes and blows,
As if Misfortune kept a pet.
We're all beset with grief and strife!
Nobody buys a bargain life.
But men who smile and fight the while
Beneath the knife—
And hide their scars, inherit stars.
The proud and daring won't admit
Their hurts. It is the lightest hit
Who cry aloud before the crowd
And cheaply quit.

(C) H. K.
